Sometimes the thematic vocabulary of the High Holidays becomes so familiar—year after year, service after service—that we cease to hear it. We say teshuvah and speak of repentance and return; we chant chadesh yameinu and speak of renewal. But do we believe it? The whole moral economy of the Days of Awe is predicated upon belief in the possibility of change—beginning in our hearts, flowing into our relationships, reaching out into God’s world. But if those three R’s—repentance, return, renewal—are just the sound of wispy rhetorical longing, then they lose their teeth, the High Holy Days lose their power and we run the risk of losing hope. Then along comes this wonderful poem by Jane Hirshfield (see next page), with a blunt and liberating reminder: “What is usual is not what is always.” Sometimes I think if we could just remember those eight words—when we are so sure of how someone will react to what we say, so sure that they will be harsh, unkind or unlistening; or so sure that we can take their forgiveness for granted. When we are so sure of their viewpoint based on their politics or their

Between Intention and Action

(Continued from cover) profession or their earnings. When we say of ourselves that we can’t change because this is how we have always been. When we say that anyone else would have acted in the same way. That’s when we need the reminder: What is usual is not what is always. The past may be prologue, but it is not destiny. Sometimes in old age, and sometimes in a relationship, hearing comes back.

At a spirituality retreat this summer, we received a simple instruction for walking meditation: Try to notice the moment between when you lift your foot and when you set it back down. In other words, try to notice the space between intention and action, the space that indicates that what you think is automatic or reflexive is in fact a choice. You could keep your foot in the air for longer, you could stand still, you could start hopping across the meadow.

The High Holy Days are about that moment—a 10-day breathing into the space between intention and action. What were my choices in the past year? When did I confuse the habitual with the necessary? When did I relegate to reflex what was in fact a choice, even though I may not have been sufficiently aware of my own volition? When did I mistake the usual for the always, and squeeze out the possibility of an unexpected blessing?

A favorite story from my late father: Once, as a young rabbi, he was standing in the hall after Hebrew School had let out and heard a boy talking on the phone to his mother, insisting that she come to pick him up right away even though he lived less than a five-minute walk from the synagogue. My father said to the boy: “Do you really need to bother your mother to come get you when you could just walk home?” The boy responded somewhat churlishly: “Well, I guess I’m just selfish.” My father replied: “Maybe, but that’s not all that you are.”

That’s what these Days of Awe are about—not only to recognize our shortcomings, but also to understand that they are not inevitable, nor permanent, nor defining. As that wise rabbi once said, they are not all that we are. What is usual is not what is always: Silence can become speech, anger can become forgiveness, certainty can give way to curiosity. That is the hope of these days—not a hope so grandiose as to be ungraspable, not fairy tale consolations, but the simple reminder “that there is exception.” That is a powerful place to start. Because whether you discern it in the words of the prayer book, in silence or song, in sacred conversation or in your own heart’s holy space, remember the lesson of the summer meadow: We have a choice about the next step. Shanah Tovah—may this be a good and sweet year for us all.

What is Usual is Not What is Always

What is usual is not what is always. As sometimes, in old age, hearing comes back.

Footsteps resume their clipped edges, birds quiet for decades migrate back to the ear.

Where were they? By what route did they return?

A woman mute for years forms one perfect sentence before she dies.

The bitter young man tires; the aged one sitting now in his body is tender, his face carries no regret for his choices.

What is usual is not what is always, the day says again. It is all it can offer.

Not ungraspable hope, not the consolation of stories. Only the reminder that there is exception.

-Jane Hirschfield, from After, 2006

OUR FUTURE | UNDER CONSTRUCTION

OUR TEMPLE | OUR FUTURE

If you have not yet given, please consider a meaningful gift to the capital campaign funding Temple’s expansion. https://participate.tedallas.org/OTOFdonation
BEGINNINGS

The aleph holds a special place in Judaism. It is the beginning of the Hebrew alphabet, the first letter of the word echad (one), emet (truth), emunah (trust) and Elul, the month that begins the annual cycle of reflection and introspection leading to the work of teshuvah, repair and renewal.

The year 5775 ushers in new beginnings at Temple, too. Consider it something of a regenerating year, in which we will experience some discomfort as we transition our beloved building. In the months ahead, the new spaces we have just dreamed about will take shape behind those fences and start to lead us to the dynamic, vital Temple of the future. A new beginning, indeed.

Aleph, Echad, Emet, Emunah—Emanu-El.
L’shanah tovah tikateivu.
"What we really want always is intimacy—with God however I understand God; with other human beings; with the universe; with my own deep self."

—Rabbi Nehemia Polen, Scholar-in-Residence

Nehemia Polen is a leading expert in Hasidism and Jewish thought and an exceptionally delightful teacher. His books include Filling Words With Light: Hasidic and Mystical Reflections on Jewish Prayer written with Rabbi Lawrence Kushner. Rabbi Polen holds a doctorate from Boston University, where he served as a teaching fellow for Nobel Laureate Elie Wiesel. Prior to his career in Jewish academia, Rabbi Polen served for 23 years as a congregational rabbi.
ELUL

In the first three weeks of the month leading toward Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur, we will explore the ideas of Emet (truth), Emunah (trust) and Echad (oneness) through learning, song, prayer and silence. Be with us at Shabbat, weekly study and gathering opportunities as we make our way into the new year.

Week 1, beginning August 29 | Emet

"Emet v’emunah...All this we hold to be true and trustworthy for us, You alone are our God and we are Israel Your people."

Week 2, beginning September 5 | Emunah

"...rabah emunatecha...I offer thanks to You, ever-living Sovereign, that You restored my soul to me in mercy: How great is Your trust."

Week 3, beginning September 12 | Echad

"Adonai echad ush’mo echad...Keep and Remember: a single command the Only God caused us to hear: the Eternal is One, God’s name is one; glory and praise are God’s."

REMEMBRANCE

The power of relationships, especially with those who have come before us, is a special part of the High Holy Days experience. There are three formal services to honor the memories of our loved ones, in addition to the prayers you keep in your heart at this most sacred time of year.

Kever Avot
Sunday, September 28, 1PM, Temple Mausoleum, 3430 Howell St.
Fulfill the mitzvah of visiting the graves of our ancestors by participating in the service of remembrance in the chapel of Temple’s Mausoleum. Whether you have loved ones buried there or not, this is a special time to cope with fresh loss and to honor the memory of our loved ones.

Yizkor at Yom Kippur: The Yizkor Memorial Service is held following the Afternoon Service. At the beginning of the service, memorial books are handed out by ushers detailing the names of loved ones. For contributions to the memorial book, see participate.tedallas.org/highholydays2014

Yizkor at Simchat Torah: In addition to Yom Kippur, Yizkor is also held at Simchat Torah. Festival morning services with Yizkor will be held on Thursday, October 16 at 10:30AM at Lefkowitz Chapel followed by a complimentary lunch in Linz Hall. RSVP Susan Dunn, sdunn@tedallas.org.

AS YOU PREPARE

Parking: General parking will be significantly reduced on Temple’s campus. The number of shuttle buses to and from NorthPark Center (north of Macy’s) will be significantly expanded. Please make plans to take the bus. Special access parking will not be affected by the construction.

Going Digital: You can now sign up for admission cards, pay for Nedavah memorial book contributions and preorder Mishkan HaNefesh, the new machzor that will be used next year, all on Temple’s website. See participate.tedallas.org/highholydays2014.

High Holy Days Hunger Relief Drive: Help us feed the hungry by bringing food during the High Holy Days and all throughout September. See details on Page 13.

Break Fast: Break the fast in the Nasher Family Atrium with a meal provided by Temple and generous donations from local caterers, restaurants and members. If you’d like to help with a food or monetary donation, make a check payable to Temple Emanu-El, Project 0176.

Live Streaming Enhances Shabbat

Temple is pleased to offer live streaming on Friday nights during Elul—August 29, September 5, 12 and 19—and during the High Holy Days. Just visit live.tedallas.org at the service time to participate. The Kesher telephone line is also available at 214.706.0050.

Here are five great reasons to connect to your Temple home away from home.

On Vacation Watch from a beach or the mountains while celebrating Shabbat from afar.

Homebound Watch with a loved one who can’t get to Temple and create community offsite.

In the Hospital A loved one can help connect you so that you can know your Temple community is thinking about you.

Hosting Shabbat Dinner Want to be there but need to do last-minute prep? Watch at home and discuss with your guests when they arrive!

Stuck in Transit Watch from the airport and feel connected to your Temple community.

The Temple Emanu-El Choir Welcomes You

New members are always welcome to the Temple Emanu-El Choir, the distinguished group of musicians that adds so much to services at Temple. For more information, contact Ralph Stannard, Director, at rstannard@tedallas.org.
Couples Club Gears up for Fall

The dynamic Couples Club is holding two offsite events this fall featuring a guest soprano soloist at one and a professional ballroom dancer at the other.

Sunday, August 17
6pm, Blue Mesa Grill, 14866 Montfort Dr.
A wine social and buffet dinner is planned for the new location of Blue Mesa. Guest soprano soloist Jacquelyn Lengfelder will provide after-dinner music. Jacquelyn is an active local performer and has sung with our own Temple Emanu-El Choir.

Sunday, September 14
6pm, May Dragon, 4848 Belt Line Road
This month’s wine social and buffet dinner will feature a program by celebrity speaker and ballroom dancer Kathleen Cunningham. Kathleen has performed in local country clubs, business organizations and popular city venues.

The Temple Emanu-El Couples club is a social club founded 24 years ago. At least one of the couple should be 55 or older. To join or RSVP, call Membership Chairs Rozann and Harry Hermann at 214.341.1000.

Keep Connected in College

Are you a college student or a member of the military? Temple wants to stay in touch! Let us know how to contact you and send you news and surprises from Temple. We need all college and grad students and those serving in the military to submit contact updates, even if they haven’t changed locations. Please visit www.tedallas.org/community/college to fill out the contact form. The deadline for the first mailing is September 10.

Another way to stay connected is through the college page on Facebook, www.facebook.com/TE College. If you are a parent of a college-age student or want to stay in touch with them, consider joining Temple’s College Committee.

How Does Our Garden Grow?
In a Sock, Honest!

Temple’s Community Garden is a great success and the majority of produce is donated directly to the Vickery Meadow Food Pantry, which allows us to provide fresh food to our neighbors. With the purchase of 23 Garden Soxx kits, our neighbors will be able to grow 80 pounds of vegetables and spices over two years. Garden Soxx are made out of black mesh and each one is 2 feet by 1 foot long. A complete garden comes with eight Soxx, a watering can, seeds, plants, a growing guide and recipe book. We are participating in this project as a member of the Dallas Coalition for Hunger Solutions, as part of the Texas Hunger Initiative. Eleven organizations will be purchasing a total of 172 gardens to help solve the issue of hunger in Dallas and the surrounding areas.

Temple will be distributing these gardens to residents of Vickery Meadow at the Pebbles Apartments, students at Vickery Meadow Learning Center (VMLC) and refugees through the International Rescue Committee. We will also have one for our ECEC students and one for our community garden.

There are two opportunities to get involved.
1. On September 12, Sharing Life Outreach in Mesquite needs help setting up the staging area once the Soxx have been delivered. If you have a few hours to help, you will be organizing the Garden Soxx to allow for easy pick-up the next day.

2. On September 13, Temple Emanu-El members are needed to pick up the gardens and distribute them to the families in Vickery Meadow. You will need to arrive at Sharing Life Outreach in Mesquite at 8AM, receive a quick training and then drive the Soxx to the recipient families. As you deliver the gardens to the families, you will need to share the instructions on how to plant and care for the gardens. Note: Trucks, vans and SUV’s are in demand. Please help out if you can!

Each month we will be in touch with the recipients to see how their gardens are doing and what kind of produce they have grown. Please visit our blog on www.tedallas.org to meet the recipients and watch their gardens grow.

g2g: On the Road Again
Tuesday, October 7, 10AM

The adventurous g2g crowd is headed to the Latino Cultural Center for a tour and exhibit on the Pike Park neighborhood. The exhibit traces the roots of Jewish and Mexican immigrants, honoring community life in an area of Dallas most recently known as Little Mexico (now Uptown). The Pike Park area was initially settled in the late 1800s by Eastern European Jewish immigrants and was alternately referred to as Little Jerusalem, Goose Valley or Frogtown. The area changed in the 1910s-1930s as Mexican residents moved in and Jewish residents moved to South Dallas. The exhibit is a project of the Dallas Mexican American Historical League and the Dallas Jewish Historical Society, in collaboration with the Latino Cultural Center. Lunch follows at Mi Cocina. Tickets: $20 Contact and RSVP: Susan Dunn, sdunn@tedallas.org
“When you are asked in the world to come, ‘What was your work?’ and you answer, ‘I fed the hungry,’ you will be told, ‘This is the gate of the Eternal, enter into it, you who have fed the hungry.’”

Feed the Hungry, Nourish our Souls

Taking care of our neighbors who may be hungry is an ever-present responsibility for Temple. Here are some specific efforts for which you can lend your hands, your time and your financial resources. For questions or to sign up, contact Diana Einstein at deinstein@tedallas.org.

Vickery Meadow Food Pantry
Throughout August, September and October, we need your help to sort and deliver food to the Vickery Meadow Food Pantry every other week. The Vickery Meadow Neighborhood Alliance Food Pantry was established in 2009 and expanded into a new space with a clothes closet in 2012. The Food Pantry is a collaborative effort of Catholic Charities of Dallas, St. Vincent de Paul, Jewish Family Service, National Council of Jewish Women, Ladies of Charity and Park Cities Baptist Church.

North Texas Food Bank
Saturday, September 13, 1-3:30pm
Team up with other Temple Emanu-El members to sort food and prepare backpacks for children. NTFB became one of Temple’s partner organizations in 2013 and we offer monthly volunteer opportunities for adults and children ages 10 and up.

North Dallas Shared Ministries
Sunday, October 19, 9:30am
Help unload the storage unit containing food from the High Holy Days Hunger Relief Drive. Temple has been a covenant congregation with NDSM since they opened their doors in 1983.

BRUCEVILLE, TEXAS—It’s no coincidence that we were able to catch up with the leadership team of the newly rebranded Youth Learning + Engagement (YL+E) department on a summer Friday at Greene Family Camp. For it is there in the hills of Central Texas that they forged their Jewish identities as children and branched out into the exciting world of transformative Jewish education.

Tell us about your dreams for youth learning at Temple.
Rabbi Amy Ross, Director of Learning and Innovation: Our mission is to weave formal learning and youth engagement together into one seamless whole. Jewish engagement doesn’t only happen on Sunday. I’m excited about the new terminology because it more accurately describes what we do. My mission as a Jewish educator is to have kids waking their parents up in the morning and saying it’s time to go to Temple and not the other way around.

Michael Swartz, Director of Youth Engagement: We want to make it clear that no matter what your age, there is a Temple youth group for you, and we want you to participate. The goal of all of it is to bring the kids into closer relationships with each other, with our congregational community and with the Jewish people everywhere.

We will start a high school program this school year. Excited?
RAR: Absolutely excited! What the new youth learning and engagement team is seeking to do is create as many avenues of engagement for Temple Emanu-El kids and their families as there are interests. The new high school is one example of that.

Paul Kleiman, Associate Director of Learning and Innovation: The model in Kulanu (the new high school) is that all students will have a grade-level class, as well as a number of different electives, such as Israel, the environment or social justice. I’m really excited about creating an environment where kids can seek out their interests.

How are learning and engagement connected?
MS: What strengthens our community is the development of relationships. We offer a variety of opportunities to allow for relationship building. Some of those opportunities are in the classroom and some are outside. We are constantly looking for new experiences that simultaneously enhance learning and deepen engagement.
RAR: We are also seeking to change the experience in the classroom. We’re looking at finding creative ways for Judaism to speak to our kids and for them to understand that Jewish values and Jewish traditions have meaning in their lives.
PK: If we show them we’re an inclusive place where kids feel comfortable and develop relationships, then education will follow. It’s as simple as that. I come from the traditional classroom environment; some people really are of the belief that if the teacher is not talking, the kids are not learning. That’s so not what we’re about.

Please share a special moment that transformed your views of Jewish education.
MS: When I came to Greene Family Camp for the first time, I made four really great friends that will last the rest of my life. As a result, they drive me to learn more about my own Judaism. It happened in a setting that was not a classroom. It happened very organically.
PK: When I was asked to teach at my synagogue, I felt this kind of generational responsibility. I felt really honored that my synagogue said: ‘All right, it’s time for you to pass some of that down.’
RAR: I grew up at Temple. In DAFTY, I had the opportunity to serve as the programming vice president. (Incidentally, my co-vice president was Justin Ross, who’s now my husband.) Our job was to create programming and learning without our peers knowing we were teaching them. I really started to understand it was possible to learn about Judaism outside of the classroom. The combination of Religious School, DAFTY and Greene led me to want to spend my life and career and energy revolutionizing Jewish education.

A New School of Thought
Rabbi Amy Ross, Paul Kleiman and Michael Swartz reflect on what Jewish learning is today, and how they got here.

A new era of youth learning has begun at Temple Emanu-El, with the launch of Kulanu, our new high school program and a revamped departmental structure that combines classroom study, social opportunities, travel in upper grades, parent involvement, retreats and tikkun olam.

The new Department of Youth Learning + Engagement (YL+E) is the culmination of years of thinking about how to make learning more dynamic as well as build community among students and their families. A team of staff and lay leaders, led by Religious School Committee chair Amy Roseman and Vice-President Mary Lee Broder, collaborated on the new department.

“Through the YL+E, students and their families will be able to interact on many levels with our staff and community. We will be reaching students where they are, as well as opening up possibilities to fully embrace the joy of Jewish Learning,” says Rabbi Amy Ross, whose new title is Director of Learning and Innovation.

Joining Rabbi Ross is Paul Kleiman, the new Associate Director of Learning and Innovation, who will focus primarily on Tichon in grades 7-8 and the high school. Michael Swartz, Director of Youth Engagement, will continue his work engaging students and families through our youth groups and other programs such as Sababa, Family Mitzvah Corps, Madrichim (teen teaching assistants), summer camps and travel opportunities. Kayce Kuntz, Youth Learning and Engagement Coordinator, will work on creating seamless transitions for our families as they move through our programs and will serve as advisor for our youth groups: DAFTY, Gesher and Shoreshim.

The high school program will be held from 12:15-2:30pm on Sundays during the Religious School calendar year and will include lunch.

“Our goal is to create relevant, meaningful and engaging Jewish learning that motivates high school students to grow Jewishly and continue their religious education,” Rabbi Ross says. “We also want to provide a dedicated opportunity for teens to socialize and to form, strengthen and build relationships with each other and the greater Temple community.”

High school students will have the opportunity to get involved in social justice experiences, with the possibility of offering semester-long fieldwork as alternatives to classroom courses. Students will also get to travel with one another on trips such as the L’Taken seminar in Washington, D.C., offered during the Confirmation year.

Add Some Shabbat to Your Life

At Temple, there’s a perfect Shabbat experience for everyone. Here are three additional experiences to augment our main services in the Olan Sanctuary and Lefkowitz Chapel.

Friday, October 24, 6pm
Friday, November 21, 6pm
Friday, January 9, 6pm
Saturday, February 21, 5pm, Havdalah
Friday, March 20, 6pm
Saturday, April 11, 5pm, Havdalah
Saturday, May 16, 5pm, Havdalah

Sharing Meals Together

Shabbat Nash

A light lunch the first Saturday of every month, following Shabbat Morning Services in Lefkowitz Chapel. The next Nosh is September 6, combined with the WRJ Welcoming Fall Event.

Family Fridays

A cool way to start your Shabbat!

November 7 • December 5 • January 23
February 13 • April 24
All begin at 6pm and include worship, dinner and activities

For each month that we do not have a congregational dinner planned, members will meet at various restaurants and enjoy spending time and a great meal together. Our next opportunity is during Membership Shabbat on September 5. Contact: Valerie Pelan, vpelan@integratedfocus.com or 214.454.5376

Make a Difference. Join WRJ!

Sisterhood is not just about the cookies (although ours are delicious!). The impact of this dynamic group of women is felt at all levels of Temple, from hospitality to youth scholarships to the Our Temple | Our Future campaign. Whether you want to become a leader or just schmooze with friends, there’s a place for you.

The WRJ membership drive is under way now through September 30. For sign-ups, details and dues payment, visit the new WRJ website, www.tesisterhood.org or mail in the form you should receive soon.

Reflections from Camp

Dear ECEC Families:
The end of summer is fast approaching! Our campers have had a spectacular time at Camp K’ton, where they have explored science, camping, land of the lost, a variety of water experiences and the amazing animals at kibbutz Gan Israel!

We look forward to all our new and returning families starting another school year with us on August 25th. We invite all our Temple families that have young children to please join us for our monthly Tot Shabbat programs. A schedule is on Page 15, entitled "Add Some Shabbat to Your Life."

We warmly welcome you back to the 2014-2015 school year!

Shelly Sender
Early Childhood Education Director

Sunday, September 14 | 3-6PM | Temple Emanu-El
$20 per person ($10 for children under 2)

Price includes admission, games, prizes, food and beverages.

Tickets will be available September 8-12 at Temple Emanu-El ECEC during school hours. Tickets can also be purchased the day of the event!
