Could we all benefit from 15 minutes of daily prayer?

Prayer means something different to each of us, and to each of us something different in each moment. Prayer is solitude and community, tranquility and celebration, comfort in sadness and resounding song.

And for us as Jews, prayer is about people. Our tradition insists on a minyan, a minimum quorum of ten, for the offering of the core prayers of the liturgy, most notably the Mourner’s Kaddish, traditionally recited each day for a year after a loved one dies. In a beautiful lesson about the role of companionship in prayer, the Talmud (Tractate Berakhot 5b) teaches that if two people enter a synagogue to pray, and one of them finishes praying first, if he leaves without waiting for his companion to finish, his own prayer will be rejected. Jewish prayer is not only about the One to whom we pray, and not only about the ones for whom we pray, but about the ones with whom we pray.

That offering of community and companionship has been the gift of Temple’s morning minyan ever since it was founded by Brotherhood President Larry Tabak and Rabbi Gerald Klein over thirty-five years ago. At 8:15 a.m. from Sunday through Friday, a wonderful and varied group of men and women, sustained by the commitment and example of Irv Statman and others, gathers in Lefkowitz Chapel for fifteen minutes of prayer (and a cup of coffee!) to begin the day. The daily service includes singing, reading in English and Hebrew, and prayers for healing. The participants feel the fulfillment not only of their own experience, but of fulfilling the mitzvah to be present for others who come to say Kaddish.

Listen to the voices of some of our morning minyan participants:

One of my discoveries of 2012 was the joy of morning minyan. It is come as you are. For me, that means I am in workout gear, either before or after exercise, depending on the day. You can attend daily or once a week, as I do. In those 15 minutes, I am able to set my spiritual and intellectual compasses for the day. There is too much noise posing as information today - and minyan brings clarity. What a great return on 15 minutes of invested time!

Whether in a time of happiness or a time of despair, our tradition teaches us that it is preferable to praise G-d in a community than to do so alone. The Temple Emanu-El minyan supported and honored my mourning process. The minyan also provides a daily opportunity to say a mishebeirach – which gave me an opportunity to pray for those in need of healing. The minyan is community at the core.

The regulars at minyan are a diverse group with a 15-minute service in common. Throughout my 13+ years of coming to minyan, I have seen many people come in, unable to utter a word, not even the Kaddish, without weeping. Slowly but surely, the short service gave them comfort and the regulars gave them hope that life does go on and they are not alone in their journey through the mourning period, illness or whatever they are experiencing.

Minyan lets me thank G-d for all I have, for blessings in my life, and to remember those who came before me. When I began going to minyan it was solely to say Kaddish for my mother. I had been so involved with her care at the end of her life that I wanted a way to gradually let go and reflect on her loss. Saying Kaddish gave me a set time for this, so that the rest of my day was not dominated by a hovering sense of loss. I checked in with my grief every morning, I didn’t push it aside or let it overwhelm.

I have attended the minyan for the last three years on a daily basis. It has become a very important part of how I see myself as a Jew. Daily attendance challenges the question of why we do a mitzvah—Do I go every morning for my own well being, or to support Temple Emanu-El mourners and the other members of the minyan community? The answer, of course, is “yes.”

Could we all benefit from fifteen minutes of prayer to begin the day? From starting our day with the mitzvah that makes it possible for others to say Kaddish? From offering not only our prayers to God, but our simple presence to those who pray along with us? The answer is clear at Temple every morning from Sunday through Friday. To quote one of the wise minyan reflections above, “The answer, of course, is ‘yes.’”
Rabbi Stern’s sermon series continues at Union Prayer Book services

Friday, March 8 at 6:15 p.m.

Roots and Branches: Reform Judaism Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

We live in a rapidly changing society and a rapidly changing Jewish world. In this three-part sermon series, Rabbi Stern will address questions like: What are the roots and historic contributions of Classical Reform Judaism that can help us respond to the challenges and opportunities of our own day? How can the historic dynamics of our movement help us understand Reform Judaism in 2013? Does contemporary Reform Judaism still have a distinctive identity? What has changed and what remains constant? As American Jews become increasingly diverse and entrepreneurial in practice, do denominations still matter at all? Join us for these services and sermons to grapple with these questions and to celebrate the legacy and potential of twenty-first century Reform Judaism.

Part I (December 21) and Part II (January 18) are available on our website at http://www.tedallas.org/sermons.

Torah Honors

If you would like to participate in the Shabbat Morning Service in Lefkowitz Chapel by dressing and undressing the Torah, carrying the Torah, or leading the Torah blessings, members of our new Gabbai Team can help you make the arrangements. No experience is necessary but a training session will take place on February 2 following Shabbat morning services and before the Shabbat Nosh if you’d like to practice. Contact our Gabbai Team at gabbaiteam@tedallas.org or by leaving a message at 214.706.0017.

The Voices of the Prophets Speak in Lefkowitz Chapel

The biblical prophets who chided our ancestors to live lives of faith and action, to demonstrate their beliefs by caring for others and our world, still speak to us today. The Haftorah portions selected to accompany the Shabbat Torah portions are regular opportunities to learn about these moral and ethical values and integrate them even more deeply into our modern lives. Our Lefkowitz Chapel Shabbat Morning Service (at 10:30 on Saturdays) includes a selection from these prophetic books each week. Lay volunteers chant the traditional blessings in Hebrew and read the portion in English. If you would like to participate in this ritual, please contact Frost Gardner at sheilaandfrosty@tx.rr.com or 972.385.7680 for a date and join this warm worship community to celebrate Shabbat.

Rosh Hodesh

Rosh Hodesh Adar is Monday February 11. Look for the new moon on Sunday night February 10! In Adar we celebrate the holiday of Purim, a time when storytelling and costumes, sweet treats, special drinks, and general frivolity help to reveal the blessings hidden in the world around us. Our tradition teaches, “When the month of Adar begins, we increase our joy.” This new month is an opportunity to uncover and increase the blessings of hope and happiness, love and laughter in our lives and in our world with our words and our actions.

New shoes for the children at Pebbles Apartments

The children at the Pebbles Apartments were surprised with new shoes this month. Barbara Einsohn, her sister Mindy Berger and Terry Hill took on the enormous task of buying shoes for each child who needed them. Some of the children had never had a pair of new shoes before so their mothers had to guess at their sizes. Needless to say, few of the new shoes fit, so Barbara, Mindy & Terry had to go back & forth to the shoe stores until they managed to find a perfect match for each child. By the end of the fitting sessions, lots of smiling children were happily parading around in their new shoes.

Volunteers bring Christmas to Pebbles Apartments

Temple Emanu-El volunteers gave the women and children at The Pebbles Apartments a special holiday party on December 21. Andrea and Norm Bleicher provided a delicious BBQ dinner from Rudy’s Country Store. Laurie & Todd Platt brought all the party goods as well as ice cream for all, and Jenn & Jay Riven arranged for decorations and party favors. St Marks and Hockaday provided all the toys as well as a live Santa Claus & Elf, and the Wee Volunteers arranged for small gifts for each adult.

For information on Pebbles and how to help, please contact Nancy Lubar at nlubar@sbcglobal.net.

Sign the petition asking for Texas to opt-in to Medicaid expansion

In December, Temple’s Board unanimously approved its support of Medicaid expansion and advocating on its behalf. The Board believes that it is the right thing to do because it is consistent with our Jewish values and the stances our congregation previously made on behalf of CHIP and Parkland.

Like Temple’s prior advocacy efforts, Medicaid expansion has-bipartisan support. We are working with our partners in the Dallas Area Interfaith to build coalitions across lines of faith, race, and class that will advocate together for Texas to ‘opt-in’ to Medicaid expansion.

If you are interested in getting involved, please click here. Or, contact Mike Rosen, miker@rosensystems.com, chair of Just Congregations or Rabbi Asher Knight at rabbik@tedallas.org.

Cantor Richard Cohn’s series explores Jewish Mystical Texts and Spiritual Practice

Feb. 23, March 2, 9; 9 a.m.

Join Cantor Richard Cohn for a series based on texts selected from Daniel Matt’s “The Essential Kabbalah,” complimented by an introduction to Jewish spiritual practices. The group will gather on Saturday mornings, from 9:00 to 10:15 a.m. on February 23 as well as March 2 and 9 in the Weiss Youth Wing.

Jewish mystical texts represent a significant body of thought and creativity, applied to the most fundamental concerns of our lives. They address our understanding of the Divine presence in Creation and our relationship to that presence. They offer responses to difficult spiritual questions, while illuminating pathways of Jewish practice that can influence real choices in our lives.

Each session will be centered around a focal text, encompassed within a learning environment that includes sacred chant, elements of prayer and meditation, aspects of mussar (cultivation of character traits) and attention to opportunities for Jewish observance.

If you have any questions about the class, please contact Rabbi Adam M. Allenberg at aallenberg@tedallas.org.

Grace and Gratitude for 2013

By Silvia Davis

I want to say “thank you” to Caring Congregation for the many blessings I have received the past year or so. I want all the volunteers, named and unnamed to feel appreciated. So often it goes unsaid that we are grateful for acts of kindness and I do not want to miss this opportunity.

Whether it is Peggy Papert, our director, Alan Harris and his crew of hospital visitation volunteers (who will now also visit congregants who are in long term rehab) or Jo-Sandra Greenberg and her Challah Angels who bake tirelessly for many Temple events and projects, I am blessed by dozens of committed, loving people who are generally anonymous, working to help our congregants in all stages of their lives. The blessings come in the form of example, simple contact and communication. I learn from all of them how to care for others in ways I could never have imagined.

Did you know that Madelyn Rosenbaum coordinates the team that answers the Careline? Dana Shidlofsky is the Event Coordinator for our Volunteer Enrichment events and Robin Sachs and Beverly Blumenthal are the brains and brawn behind g2g. Way to go! Betsy Kleinman cooks and organizes Mitzvah Meals and Susan James and Ruth Klein lead Havdallah for Seniors at Town Village North and Legacy Preston Hollow, respectively. Honoring Our Own, led by Bruce Kaye, is a Caring Congregation project that includes a self sustaining military support group whose members have filled me with admiration and humility at the respect and care they show for each other. Arnie Marks often helps facilitate these meetings and also is the driving force behind the round table discussions that connect military personnel and religious school kids to help create awareness and compassion. I thank each of you and all the people who engage with you to turn our caring concept into a caring reality.

Thank you Shelley Rosen and your team for knitting Booties for Babies and Laurie Drazner for introducing our committee’s work to Bar and Bat Mitzvah candidates! Thanks to Malorree Banks, Gilian Baron and Dana Roseman for leading a veritable platoon of Mitzvah Meal deliverers.

I am grateful to Evey Fagadau and Peggy Zilbermann for our Volunteer Enrichment events and Jim Parrish for all his hard work as our Communications Liaison. Zelda Siegel, Pat Zilbermann and Peggy Zilbermann are the energy behind the Holiday Cards that go out twice a year and Jeanne Miller sends Birthday Cards for Seniors. Thank you Susan Bates and Hilarie Weinstock for your work on our Elijah + 2 project that matches up hosts and guests for Passover Seders each year. My heart is filled with gratitude for Roz Katz and her years of dedication to the Service of Healing and Inspiration.

Last but not least, thank you to my co-chair and friend, Debbie Williams. Thank you for saying “yes” when I asked if you would walk this path with me. Thank you for sharing your wisdom and insight. And a huge thank you for the laughter we share on this journey. I love you.

So, Happy and thankful 2013! There is no better way to kick it off than with a grateful heart.

Our Temple | Our Future will facilitate 21st Century learning

A new education wing and renovated learning spaces are a key component of the Our Temple, Our Future project. Here, Rabbi Amy Ross looks at what 21st Century learning might look like.

For just a moment, forget everything you ever knew about Jewish learning. Erase those crowded desks with attached chairs, chalkboards with last week’s lesson barely erased, and faded Alef-Bet charts from your mind. Banish the image of the teacher, holding a book and lecturing to the neat rows of students sitting in front of her.

Now picture this: a classroom buzzing with activity. Students sitting in small groups talking animatedly to each other while researching customs of Jews in different countries on tablet computers. The teacher working with a student on a third draft of a social justice presentation that will go to the Board of Trustees later that month. A built-in projector displaying a slideshow of images of Jewish ritual objects from different times in history.

Imagine a room that is not a classroom, but a learning space. An adaptable room that changes with the type of learning that is taking place within. A room that has flexibility in size and focal point, integration of technology, and seamless storage.

A room that accommodates the youngest learners, the oldest learners and all those in-between, whether they are learning together or separately. A room that could be used as an art or music studio, a writing lab or social space. A room that is as diverse as its learners.

And now, though this may be a challenge, try to conjure the image of a student begging his parents to bring him to Religious School. Begging, because at Religious School, he is in charge of his own Jewish education. He has a supportive teacher who guides and motivates his study. He has tools and resources at his fingertips that make his learning engaging and exciting. His learning truly means something and contributes to the Temple Emanu-El and Dallas communities. His learning takes place outside of the classroom and is seen and utilized by other students and members of his community.

This picture is the future of learning at Temple Emanu-El. This picture, this dream, is one that Our Temple | Our Future will bring. This dream will be our reality.

Rabbi Adam Allenberg talks about Shabbat at Brotherhood meeting

Rabbi Allenberg explained the three stages of Shabbat during the Brotherhood Meeting in December 2012. He discussed the concepts of creation, redemption, and revelation as it is mentioned in the weekly Shabbat services. Specifically he talked about the prayers in the Amidah (the standing public and silent prayers) as it applies to the Shabbat Evening (Friday night) service, the Shabbat (Saturday) Morning service, and the Shabbat (Saturday) Afternoon service. The Friday night Amidah focuses on creation, while the Saturday morning Amidah focuses on revelation and the Saturday afternoon Amidah focuses on redemption. Rabbi Allenberg explained how each version of the Amidah changes to accentuate the stages of Shabbat in which it falls and its meanings. In summary, he mentioned the importance of rest and how it applies not only in the Shabbat services but also in our lives.

Ken Schiller gives the D’Var Torah at the Decembe monthly meeting

Ken Schiller presented the D’Var Torah for the week to members of the Brotherhood who were present for the monthly meeting in December. The weekly parsha came from the book of Genesis 37:1-40:23 and is called Vayeshev “Every family has a Joseph”. “Now Jacob loved Joseph best of all his sons, for he was the child of his old age; and he had made him an ornamented tunic.” (Genesis 37:3) Ken discussed the fact that many parents do have favorites among their children. Some try to hide this; others don’t. But children always know which one of them is mother’s favorite, which one is father’s and which one simply does not belong. Ken discussed jealousy and its affect among members of a family. He closed his remarks by stating not to be jealous of your neighbor or your neighbor’s wife.

Aaron Noble achieves Eagle Scout rank

Aaron Noble of Temple Emanu-El Troop 729 recently received his Eagle Scout rank. Eagle, the highest rank in Scouting, signifies the attainment of superior knowledge and skills. He is the 92nd Eagle to join Troop 729 Eagle Honor Roll. Troop 729 is sponsored by Temple Emanu-El Brotherhood, chartered in 1919.

Aaron’s Eagle Scout Project was to rebuild a gate and fence protecting the vegetable garden of the Vickery Meadows family area.

Aaron is the son of Sam and Aida Noble, and grandson of Dr. Marvin and Cyvia Noble of Dallas, and Dr. Homero and Sonia Rivas of McAllen. Beginning as a Cub Scout of Pack 613, Aaron rose through the Scout ranks receiving many awards including the Larry Landa Troop Award, the Order of the Arrow-Honor Society of the Boy Scouts, elected Youth Leader for the OA Chapter and District Camporee events for the past 2 years.

In Scouting he had many camping feats including 2 trips to Philmont Scout Ranch, Buffalo River National Park, plus many summer camps in Texas, Oklahoma, and Colorado.

Temple Emanu-El Couples Club assists Vickery Meadow Food Pantry

At a recent Temple Emanu-El Couples Club Holiday Party, members were asked to bring a donation of items for the Vickery Meadow Food Pantry. Recognizing the Mitzvah of this kind, members brought boxes of requested food items which in turn were delivered to Vickery Meadow.

Entertainment by Karaoke singer Rick Stephens was provided for the evening. A catered Latke dinner and wine social were also a part of this joyous Holiday gathering.

The Temple Emanu-El Couples Club, founded 23 years ago, is a social club, open to all members of the Temple. One of the couple must be 55 years of age or older. Prospective members from the Jewish community are also invited to join. If interested, call Frances Sue Schneider at 972.398.1771, or Sarah Yarrin or Jack Repp at 214.361.0486.
