This summer, at the Clark Art Institute in Williamstown, Mass., you can climb a slope to a meadow and sit inside of a crystal—or at least an installation called “Crystal,” by the contemporary artist Thomas Schutte. “Crystal” is a large asymmetrical structure that Schutte created out of wood and zinc-coated copper by imagining a piece of crystal scaled up to architectural proportions. Its irregular shape is open on one side, and frames a breathtaking view of the meadow, a stand of native Berkshire trees and the Hoosac mountain range.

The trees have been there for decades, the meadow for centuries, the mountains for millennia. So what is the artist’s contribution? Yes, “Crystal” is aesthetically pleasing, but it doesn’t hold a candle to the intimate glories of nature which surround it. What it does hold is a framing, an invitation to see the familiar anew, a beckoning not only to nature’s beauty, but to concentrate on that which we might otherwise stroll by. The energizing paradox is that here the imposition of man-made artifice upon the natural world, far from defiling that world as it so often can, compels us to stop and see that world with new eyes.

CLERGY MESSAGE and CONSTRUCTION UPDATE

I suppose that is the goal of much good architecture. It is certainly the aesthetic that animates the design of the Howard Meyer/Max Sandfield building we are privileged to call home, with courtyards and visions of the natural and urban world beyond our walls at every turn. And it has been carried forward brilliantly in the work of our current architect Gary Cunningham, from the new chapel which will exemplify the dialogue between human and natural worlds to the attention to natural light throughout the new and renovated spaces.

But most of all, this architecture of invitation and attention characterizes the High Holy Days themselves. After all, like the timeless meadows and mountains, our hearts have been with us all along. It’s not as if these Days of Awe create new emotional landscapes: the gratitude we feel at this season, or the pain; the loneliness and longing; the sense of search or resolve. They are part of the terrain which makes us who we are. But in the hustle and bustle of our daily lives, the pulls and tugs and pressures, how rarely do we concentrate our attention on the landscape before us? How rarely do we give ourselves a moment to hold our own feelings compassionately, to validate sadness instead of brushing it away, to offer thanks for what is good instead of focusing on what is lacking, to sense the world’s pain instead of securing another stone in walls of defense?

In some ways, the High Holy Days are as artificial as Schutte’s creation in the Berkshire meadow. Human words on printed pages, instructions to rise or be seated, admission cards and parking lots and too much air conditioning (or too little). But when it all works—when the music lifts us up or a word brings light or community brings strength or memory is sad and soothing and sweet—then these days are a beckoning to our attention, a centuries-old and meticulously designed invitation to stop and sit and see what has been there all along: the terrain of each heart, the potential of each spirit, the ways in which the world so profoundly needs us, the dignity of all of our possibilities in this new year. To enter prayer’s meadow in community and reflection and song, and from it see ourselves and the world anew—may that be our blessing at this new year. Shanah Tovah!

New and Improved!

At this time of year, the notion of “opening the gates” has special resonance as we prepare for the High Holy Days! We are optimistic—accounting for the vagaries of any construction schedule—that we’ll be able to open up some spaces for use this fall. Keep an eye out for Temple communications as opening dates may shift. Watch for details about a major celebration event in Spring 2016.

INFORMATION
Jane Larkin, jlarkin@tedallas.org
In addition to saying yes to each other, Temple is offering a class that gives engaged couples ways to say yes to Judaism as they embark on married life. Taught by Rabbi Kimberly Herzog Cohen and Temple staff, Goin’ to the Chuppah covers the fundamentals of creating a Jewish home, explores the gift of Shabbat and creates opportunities for couples in the same stage of life to build relationships with one another.

Goin’ to the Chuppah will meet four times each semester with a curriculum that offers instruction and Jewish experiences and complements the sessions a couple has with officiating clergy. It is free for couples being married by Temple clergy and Temple members.

The course is mandatory for all local couples being married by Temple clergy, and must be completed no later than the first year of marriage. Community couples being married by Jewish clergy can also participate.

SUKKAT SHALOM

A Community Conversation About Addiction, Recovery and Help

Temple is a safe place for tough topics, and we are here for you to come together to discuss issues of addiction and recovery. A community program, “What You Don’t Know Can Hurt Your Family,” will be held at 7pm on Sunday, Aug. 16 at Temple Shalom. The free program is organized by the Dallas Chapter of Hadassah. Four speakers will share their stories and expertise:

Suzanne Wilner-Minc: A personal story on prescription drug abuse
Janet Henson, Jewish Family Service: Substance abuse at various stages of life
Rabbi Nancy Kasten: How the Jewish community can do a better job of providing support to families in need
Hazel Alterman, Partnership for Drug-Free Kids: How to seek assistance

Calling For More Great Leaders

Are you a leader and a connector? Sh’m a Emanu-El is looking for you!

Temple’s major initiative to create meaningful connections in small groups is thriving. We’re ready to take it to the next level, and are looking for Sh’m a Group guides to expand our options.

If you have ever thought about leading a group, now’s a perfect time to do so. You’ll be trained in facilitating a group, and you’ll have a coach. And you can expect that members of your Sh’m a Group will share responsibilities.

Contact: Diana Einstein, deinstein@tedallas.org

As a Guide, you will...

• Help your Sh’m a Group develop and observe a covenant (brit)
• Create a safe space and embrace those who are present
• Schedule gatherings so that the group meets regularly
• Provide or organize the nosh and the meeting location
• Facilitate or delegate the learning
• Encourage shared responsibilities
• Communicate with your Sh’m a Group members outside of the meetings
• Communicate with your coach

What They’re Saying...

“It is a true honor for me to be a Sh’m a Group Guide. The members of our group are authentic, insightful, spiritual women who have a lot to contribute to our community and our world. Every time we meet and share we become closer and learn new things. This group makes me feel valuable, connected and empowered.”

Susan Stein

“Why do I enjoy being in a Sh’m a Group? The answer is in two parts: 1) Having more Jewish friends. I cherish the Jewish friends I have but have precious few of them. Now I’m on my way to having more. 2) Having a stronger connection with Temple, which definitely needed some shoring up.”

Charles Lustig

“I’ve always thought that Temple Emanu-El was very good at making a large congregation seem small. Sh’m a Emanu-El is just one more way they make that happen. As a Sh’ ma Emanu-El leader I get to help people feel more connected to Temple Emanu-El and, hopefully, to their Judaism.”

Jennifer Hoffman

“Being new to Dallas and to TE, the opportunity afforded me to be a Guide for a Sh’ma group has been a wonderful way to integrate into the Dallas/TE community. I have enjoyed meeting new friends, socializing, and spending time in discussion about the Jewish approach to ethical and moral challenges in today’s world. Additionally, as a Sh’ma group Guide, I have been offered several wonderful educational and community outreach opportunities as well as additional time with our amazing clergy and professional staff! Thank you TE for helping make the transition to our new life so smooth!”

Barbara Solomon

“The real pleasure of being guides is immersing ourselves in a dialogue about our Jewish lives and values. At the same time, we have enjoyed coming together with other Jews who are anxious to explore Jewish subjects, experience activities in the broader community and explore concerns about meaningful issues that we must consider and act on frequently.”

Your Turn to Learn

Temple’s 5776 curriculum is rich with history, Hebrew, Torah, literature and parent education. Whatever you are seeking, there’s a class for you!

Adult Hebrew

Two new courses will focus on Hebrew for use in the synagogue. They are designed as small group experiences so students can develop relationships with one another, and will be taught by experienced faculty. Each course will be taught in the fall and spring.

It is our hope that students who participate in Beginner Hebrew I and II will be able to read blessings by next summer. Our goal for Advanced Beginner I and II is for students to be able to read some prayers from the Shabbat service and consider learning to read from the Torah.

Beginner Hebrew I

Choose which evening is best for you. All are from 7-9pm.

- Tuesdays, Sept. 29-Dec. 15
- Thursdays, Oct. 1-Dec. 17

Covers the Alef-Bet (alphabet), and students begin to read basic Hebrew prayers. Absolutely no prior experience or knowledge is necessary. Taught by Rozelle Gilman, pictured above.

Advanced Beginner Hebrew I

7-9pm Tuesdays
Sept. 29-Dec. 15

For those who know the letters of the alphabet and are ready to develop reading skills.

Cost: $100 per course, including the textbook
Advance registration is required. Confidential scholarships are available.

Register: participate.tedallas.org/beginnerhebrew

Mindful Parenting: A New Year’s Recipe for Awe, Gratitude, and Forgiveness

Taught by Rabbi Nancy Kasten
Thursdays 9:30-11am | Location TBA
Sept. 17, 24; Oct. 1, 8, 15, 22, 29; Nov. 5

Designed for parents of newborns through age 5

Being a parent requires us to hold two truths at the same time: We have total control and we have no control at all. At each stage of parenthood, and with each decision we make as a parent, either one of these truths can threaten to overwhelm us. In this eight-week class you will learn and practice some basic tools for mindfulness which can bring more ease as you navigate the feelings and fears that are a natural part of parenting. The texts and traditions of the High Holy Days will be applied to our practice in order to reinforce mindfulness and awareness for your entire family during this important time in the Jewish calendar.

Register: Advance registration required. participate.tedallas.org/mindfulparenting

Childcare is available with reservation.

Scholar-in-Residence Courses

In addition to learning with Scholar-in-Residence Rabbi Brian Zimmerman during Chever Torah on Shabbat mornings, make a note to be with us at his courses to be held in the winter and spring:

Cinema Schmooze

Conversations in the Haggadah

Torah from the Beginning

Sundays Sept. 27-Dec. 13
(no classes Nov. 22 or 29)
JCC, 7900 Northaven Road, 10-11:30am

Every Sunday a group of Temple Emanu-El adults read and discuss Torah together in this class that has been meeting for two decades. No experience is necessary and newcomers are always welcome.

ADULT LEARNING

Exploring the Jewish Short Story
Taught by Renée Karp
Ten Sunday sessions beginning on Sept. 27, 10-11:30AM, Aaron Family JCC

Telling our stories is a defining aspect of Jewish life. In this course, our text will be the Oxford Book of Jewish Short Stories, an extraordinary collection documenting the Jewish experience over a 100-year continuum. We will encounter Jewish writers from around the globe, weaving their diverse viewpoints and voices into a rich portrait of Jewish literary tradition.

Cost: $205 for Temple and JCC members, $250 for non members

Textbook: Oxford Book of Jewish Short Stories, edited by Ilan Stavans and available new and used at Amazon.com

Register: www.jccdallas.org/jewish-learning/thes-gesher-graduate-program/

Rabbi Levi A. Olan Radio Sermon Series
Facilitated by Dr. Morton Prager

Mondays, Oct. 12 and 26; Nov. 2, 9, 16, 23
12:15PM-1:30PM, Linz Hall

Rabbi Olan spoke out on important issues in the 1960s and 70s, and was often referred to as the conscience of Dallas. His sermons still ring true today. Bring your lunch and listen to Rabbi Olan’s original broadcast sermons on WFAA radio, followed by discussions led by Dr. Prager. The original tapes were digitized and are now available on the SMU Bridwell Library website and YouTube.

SEASON OF RETURN

Return again, return again, return to the land of your soul.
Return to who you are, return to what you are, return to where you are
Born and reborn again.

Lyrics by Rabbi Shlomo Carlebach, zT’.
Mishkan HaNefesh Rosh Hashanah, p. 277

Here we are again, at Elul and Tishri, the soul months of Judaism.
Whether we are awakened by the stirring tones of the shofar or the insistent voices within ourselves, it’s time for us to nurture our nefesh and open our souls to the possibilities of a new year. That’s what we’re about at Temple, too, as in the coming months our new spaces will open, allowing us to start breathing life into our long-held dreams.

For the soul. For the future. Fresh steps and fresh starts: Let the High Holy Days bring you closer to those you love the most, to God and to the Jewish people.

S’lichot with Dr. Alan Morinis
Scholar-in-Residence, Founder and Dean of The Mussar Institute

September 4-5, 2015

The Complacency Trap

Our friend and inspirational teacher, Dr. Alan Morinis, returns to Temple this S’lichot with a challenge for our souls: Step out of your comfort zone and into a world of possibilities. American society conditions us to default to comfort and familiarity. He asks that we use S’lichot to break free from complacency and push ourselves into a space of growth and change.

Season of Awe

Elul

Begin the journey to the High Holy Days with Elul, the month of preparation. This year's theme is “The Nefesh in the Mishkan: An Exploration of the Soul.” Each week, we will explore the following ideas about the soul, or nefesh, through readings, prayers and songs taken directly from Mishkan HaNefesh. The weekly themes will be integrated throughout Temple.

Week 1: Season of the Soul
August 21-22 | We welcome new and future members at Shabbat evening services and dinner.

Week 2: The Soul—Connecting the Jewish People
August 28-29

Remember Kever Avot

Sunday Sept. 20, 1 PM, Temple Emanu-El Mausoleum Chapel, 3430 Howell St.

This annual service of remembrance helps fulfill the mitzvah of visiting the graves of our ancestors at the High Holy Days. Temple’s service in the beautiful mausoleum chapel offers a special time and space to remember our loved ones, whether or not they are buried at the cemetery.

From Strength to Strength Simchat Torah

Sunday, Oct. 4-Monday, Oct. 5

Celebrate Consecration with our youngest learners; hear the reading of the last verses of Deuteronomy and the beginning of Genesis and dance with the Torah on the eve of Simchat Torah. The festival morning service with Yizkor will be held at 10:30AM on Simchat Torah day.

New for Sukkot: A Harvest Field Day for our Youngest Children

ECEC is closed on Monday, September 28, but Sukkot is open for fun! Drop your children off with Shelly Sender and our teachers on the ECEC playground at 9am to learn about the holiday of Sukkot with harvest, nature and gratitude. Children will hear stories about Sukkot, participate in harvest-themed activities and create a beautiful salad to be served for our community following services. Parents will be able enjoy a relaxing service in the sukkah, and the entire community will come together following the service for a bounteous feast!

The event is open to children 2 and older; all Temple families are welcome, whether or not your children are in ECEC. Babysitting is available for children under 2.

RSVPS (required): Email Diana Coben Einstein at deinstein@tedallas.org with the name and age of your child(ren).
Kindergarten at ECEC

Approved for 2016-2017

Many of today’s teens and 20s and 30s adults have fond memories of kindergarten at Temple. Beginning in 2016, another generation of young learners will have the opportunity to finish out their preschool experiences at Temple, with the reestablishment of a kindergarten class. The class to be offered by the Early Childhood Education Center will accept a maximum of 16 students, and have two kindergarten certified teachers. The classroom environment will emphasize flexible learning spaces, and will offer a project-based curriculum based on the Reggio Emilia approach to early childhood education. Both Spanish and Hebrew will be integrated into lessons. The school will offer enhanced reading, writing and mathematics programming, as well as a variety of specialized classes including music, yoga, culinary arts, chess and drama.

“We are so excited to offer this innovative, excellent curriculum for our families,” says Shelly Sender, the Temple Emanu-El Early Childhood Education Director. “Our program will nicely complement the excellent public and private alternatives in our neighborhood and throughout Dallas.”

Temple had previously run a kindergarten from 1981-2004, but had eliminated it for a variety of reasons when full-day kindergarten became the standard in Dallas-area schools. The decision to reinstate kindergarten was approved by Temple’s Board of Trustees after many months of study led by Rabbi Ana Bonnheim and Sara Gail and in collaboration with Shelly and the ECEC staff.

“Having the option of kindergarten is a great asset for our families,” says Ana. “The main reason that resonated with our parents was the curriculum strength of the ECEC, and Jewish education in particular.”

“That extra year at ECEC will finish off an already extraordinary experience,” Sara says. “We look forward to welcoming the Class of 2017!”

Cradle to Crayons to Connection

What better way to start a lifelong learning journey at Temple than at Cradle Roll, the class for babies and parents that’s open to the entire Temple community. (You don’t have to be an ECEC family to attend!) Beginning August 28, the Cradle Roll facilitator will be Becky Slakman, Associate Director of Arts and Jewish Learning.

Here’s a testimonial from Rachel Bronson, mom of twins and summer facilitator for Cradle Roll:

“When my husband and I decided to move our family from Chicago—where we’d been settled for more than a decade—to Dallas, my first thought was: How am I going to meet people? I was going from a working mom to a stay-at-home mom and the prospect of caring for my now 16-month-old twins full-time was daunting, to say the least! I immediately set about researching Jewish programming, knowing that was the best way for me to start looking for ways to find connections and community. I found Temple Emanu-El’s Cradle Roll program and it seemed too good to be true: A weekly, Temple-sponsored, age-appropriate program where we could do fun, engaging activities and I could meet other parents and caregivers? Sign me up!

It was one of the best decisions I made in our move.

Our first week in town we attended Cradle Roll and within minutes, the facilitator introduced me to Karen, a fellow MoM (Mother of Multiples), who instantly welcomed me and vowed to do whatever she and her adorable kiddos could do to ease our transition. Karen and I became friends and she introduced me to other moms who also immediately and warmly welcomed us. Karen and I have been the summer Cradle Roll leaders and we are thrilled to be able to deepen and make new bonds within the CR community each week. It’s a wonderful way to find community and forge what I know will be lasting friendships, for both myself and my daughters.”

Ask Big Questions Rabbi to Visit

Temple is pleased to welcome Rabbi Josh Feigelson as Scholar-in-Residence during the greater Dallas Jewish Learning Fest on Oct. 30-Nov. 1. Josh is the founder of Ask Big Questions, which Temple participates in through Sh’ma Emanu-El. He founded the organization with two students when he was campus rabbi at Northwestern University. In 2011, Ask Big Questions became a national initiative of Hillel, and Josh became its Educational Director.
