From the study of Rabbi David Stern

We need to let our souls catch up

To allow oneself to be carried away by a multitude of conflicting concerns, to surrender to too many demands, to commit oneself to too many projects, to want to help everyone in everything, is to succumb to violence. - Thomas Merton

Merton offers a potent critique of our lives – the hectic pace that we sometimes chalk up to achievement or ambition or even service. “Violence” is a strong word – and we should not forget the more physical violence that too many suffer in our world. But I think Merton is right – sometimes we get so busy adding value to our lives that we actually diminish them. Our spirits become torn. We shackle our own souls.

We not only know the problem, we know the solution. We know it every time we feel a sense of connectedness to the beauty of nature, and our breath comes back to us. We know it when we slip the constraints of calendars and clocks and spend time in guilt-free rest. We know it when we find strength in community and friendship, and tranquility in solitude. We know it around dinner tables of love and laughter.

And we know it in the light of Shabbat candles. Because for all the ways that nature and rest and friendship and solitude might feel like expressions of a contemporary spirituality that resists conventional religious forms, they are all facets of the power of Shabbat.

We need to re-learn what Shabbat can be. If you are worried that Shabbat is a day of oppressive prohibitions, of seemingly outmoded and demanding traditions, stop worrying. The Shabbat we all need is a day of creative opportunity for spiritual acts: slowing down, spending time with the people we care about, letting go of our need to work or buy, reaching out to God in silence and song, reflecting on our lives, repairing the fragmentation of the week and the world. It is a Shabbat of quiet reflection, of communal joy, of the renewal that energizes and galvanizes us to go back to the sacred work of justice in God’s world.

Through our ongoing Sabbath Initiative, we are exploring the powerful possibilities of Shabbat for our Temple family. Next month, we will lift those Shabbat explorations to another level. Kallah 2012 marks the return of the Temple Emanu-El Congregational Retreat, to be held from November 9-11 at Greene Family Camp. (For more information, see Page 8.)

Kallah has something for everyone: from Family Yoga to a Shabbat hike, Torah Study to Challah Baking, Family and Children’s activities to Adult-Only and Teen-Only programming, quiet time to joyous prayer.

Rabbi Dannel Schwartz tells the legend of Yameel, the swiftest runner and most reliable messenger in all of Africa. One day, a village elder found Yameel standing motionless in the middle of a path. The leader asked, “Why have you stopped in the middle of your mission?” Yameel answered, “I have been running so fast that I have left my soul behind. I am standing here waiting for it to catch up to me.”

Join us for Kallah 2012, a weekend of slowing down, catching up, and restoration of Sabbath soul.

7 ways to enrich your family’s Sukkot

1. Build an indoor sukkah. If building a traditional sukkah is not feasible, try building a sukkah-like structure indoors. Children love to create their own play area by building forts and tents. Parents can help by draping tablecloths over the dining room table or a four-poster bed. It can serve as a fun, temporary shelter for the kids and a reminder to the whole family of transition.

2. Focus on the harvest. Visit the farmer’s market to buy seasonal fruits and vegetables. Plan your menu for the week making the season’s harvest part of every meal. Get your kids involved in the kitchen. Kids are much more likely to eat the foods they help prepare.

3. Decorate your table. Take a walk with your kids collecting fallen leaves and twigs and use them along with fruits and vegetables to create beautiful centerpieces. (Pictured)

4. Have fun with the holiday. In the spirit of the season, decorate your front door with a harvest-themed wreath. Get your kids to make paper chains and hang them from your ceilings. Help your kids build an edible mini-sukkah using graham crackers, pretzels, icing and anything else that looks good in the pantry.

5. Slow down and connect. Take time off to spend with family and friends and reach out to those who are too far to visit.

6. Spread the joy of the season. Sukkot is referred to as “the time of our joy,” so maybe host a sukkah meal or party and serve foods of the harvest.

7. Help the homeless. Instead of constructing your own temporary space, you can help someone in need acquire a permanent home. Maybe you actually help build a home through Habitat for Humanity. Or you start a collection of necessary housewares and donate them to charities who help the homeless find homes. The acknowledgement that there are those in our communities who have no shelter at all can bring a meaningful awareness to your celebration.

Sweet Potato – Pumpkin Cazuela

From Tina Wasserman’s Cooking & More...

2 Tablespoons unsalted butter
2/3 cup granulated sugar
1/3 cup dark brown sugar
2 Tablespoons all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
5.6 ounce can unsweetened coconut milk (about 2/3 cup)
2 eggs
1 15 ounce can pumpkin puree (NOT pie filling) or 1 small sugar pie pumpkin
1 29 ounce can of yams in light syrup, drained, or 3 large baked sweet potatoes
1/3 cup water
1/8 teaspoon ground ginger
2 inch piece of stick cinnamon broken into pieces
1/4 teaspoon fennel seeds
3 whole cloves

1. Place the butter in a 2 quart Pyrex bowl and microwave for 45 seconds.
2. Whisk the sugars, flour and salt into the butter to combine.
3. Whisk the coconut milk and eggs into the mixture until thoroughly blended.
4. Puree the sweet potatoes and pumpkin in a processor workbowl until smooth. Add this mixture to the ingredients in the mixing bowl and whisk until a smooth batter is formed.
5. Combine the water with the spices in a small glass cup and microwave for 1 1/2 minutes. Strain the spiced water through a fine mesh strainer into the pumpkin-potato mixture and stir to incorporate.
6. Butter a 2 quart casserole and pour the mixture into the prepared dish.

Tidbits:
• Sugar pie pumpkins are about 1 ½ pounds and very rounded. Always use them when a recipe calls for cooked pumpkin. Larger pumpkins are more watery.
• Coconut milk is not milk or dairy. It is the liquid formed from ground, fresh, hydrated coconut.

--Tina Wasserman’s recent book, Entrée to Judaism, can be purchased in the Temple Emanu-El gift shop, Judaic Treasures.
Celebrations

Sukkot
Fall Harvest Celebration

Sukkot (literally, "Booths") is one of the three pilgrimage festivals, along with Passover and Shavuot that were originally agricultural celebrations. Also known as the Feast of Booths or Feast of Tabernacles, Sukkot marks the fall harvest. Its significance, however, goes beyond being a holiday of thanksgiving for the harvest. In the Amidah, Sukkot is described as “the time of our rejoicing.” The special significance and joy of Sukkot cannot be removed from the fact that it falls on the heels of the 10-day period of introspection and repentance beginning with Rosh Hashanah and ending with Yom Kippur, to which it brings a sense of completion and spiritual gratification.

Simchat Torah
Joy of the Torah

Sukkot culminates with the holiday of Simchat Torah, a celebration of all that God gave us. We conclude the annual cycle of Torah reading and then immediately begin again, starting with the story of Creation. On this day we literally dance with the Torah scrolls to celebrate both the Torah itself and Sukkot's messages about the essence of humanity, the beginnings of civilization, and the meaning of living in God’s world. It is the holiday that compels us to look upward, through the cracks of impermanence, toward the same night sky and stars upon which our earliest ancestors gazed. Here we stand, humbled, and filled with awe and gratitude for all there is, simply celebrating life.

-- Celebrating the Jewish Year, Paul Steinberg

The Time of our Happiness

By Candace Stone, Sukkot Committee

I'm really looking forward to Sukkot Under the Stars this year. Last year was so much fun. The weather was perfect, the food was delicious, and all the activities kept the kids happily entertained for hours. My daughter Eres did not want to leave. To be honest, neither did I. My husband had to drag us both to the car insisting it was past Eres' bedtime.

Since last year, I've learned a little more about the meaning of Sukkot. I now know it is thought of as the "time of our happiness" and has been described as the crescendo of the Jewish year. How great is that? After asking forgiveness from all who we have wronged, God wants us to be really happy and to be filled with peace as we kick off the New Year.

Sukkot is also a time when God wants us to know we are blessed and to feel thankful for all the good in our lives. So as I sit in services this year and enjoy the food and fellowship outside, I want to be especially mindful of all the many blessings in my life and appreciate what is. I want to feel the kind of joy our kids will be feeling as they run around and play Gaga, as well as the peace and contentment many of our parents feel as they near the end of their life journey. That's not easy to do with all the responsibilities life brings, especially raising kids. But even if I can let go just a little, enjoy life and appreciate what I have for just a few hours, that's pretty awesome.

Sharan Goldstein

When Sisterhood once announced the sukkah would be decorated with plastic fruit and vegetables, Sharan Goldstein was appalled. It was then she learned if you complain, you had better be prepared to accept responsibility. So she did, and for 39 of the last 40 years she has decorated our sukkah and bimah with great love and dedication.

Sharan and a group of volunteers with station wagons headed to the Farmers Market every year. After they examined the pumpkins, gourds, squash and hot peppers, they negotiated prices with individual farmers. The years when Sukkot fell early in September, they panicked over having nothing but watermelons, cantaloupes and peaches to hang on the sukkah, while years of drought left them with no corn. Somehow it always came together.

Sharan and her crew have streamlined the process over the years. Gone are the days of Temple staff and volunteers going to the market in station wagons. Now they meet at Perez Produce where their friend, Essie Perez, helps them put together an extraordinary array of gourds, pumpkins and corn for the sukkah and bimah and then has it delivered when they are ready to decorate.

Sharan is not retiring, but taking on an advisory role and handing over responsibility for Sukkot decorations to her daughter Amy Roseman and friend Caroline Bernstein. When Sharan was asked what the last 40 years have meant to her, she explained how the incredible bounty and beauty of fall fruits and vegetables is a reminder of how blessed we are to have so much and a reminder of those who have so little.

"It is also a wake-up call," Sharan said. "While we rejoice over the harvest, we have a responsibility to make certain the earth continues to produce the bounty we too often take for granted."
Please join us at 6pm in the Gan Tefilah (outdoor prayer space) to begin services and dedicate our Community Garden. We will transition into the Olan Sanctuary as a community and dinner will follow in the Klein Garden with activities for all ages.

The Gan Tefilah is located at the northeast corner of Temple’s property, adjacent to the Early Childhood Education parking lot.

Pricing for dinner and dessert: $10 for adults and $5 for children ages 3 – 10.

The evening will include:

• Sukkot and star-related activities for children including ga-ga, constellation crafts, edible sukkahs and more!
• Star gazing and Astronomy Program
• Hayrides to the Community Garden for a tour
• Social Justice project – creation of soup jars

Registration Deadline: Monday, October 1, 2012

Our prayers change with the seasons

Beginning on Simchat Torah, as Sukkot concludes, Jews around the world insert a simple phrase into the _Gevurot_ prayer, thanking God for causing “the wind to shift and the rain to fall,” as one of the many ways that God gives life to all. This insertion which changes when we get to Passover (when we thank God for bringing dew to earth) is connected to the seasonal changes in the Land of Israel. Giving voice to this idea allows us to feel connected not only to each other and to God but to our homeland and extended family in the State of Israel. Our congregation has been including these phrases and we hope it will add a new dimension of spirituality to our prayers in the months to come. If you’d like to know more about this prayer or practice reading or chanting it visit our website at http://www.tedallas.org/index.php?/prayer/the-gvurot.

Gabbai Team will help our members mark occasions with Shabbat honors

Perhaps you are celebrating a special birthday or anniversary and planning to be at Shabbat morning services.

Maybe you are coming to services to observe the Yahrzeit of a loved one.

Maybe you are happy to be home from a trip or grateful for a recovery from an illness.

Any of these moments might be something that could be more special, made holy, by marking them with an honor at the 10:30 Saturday morning service in the Lefkowitz Chapel.

With the newly formed Gabbai Team at Temple, doing so will now be especially easy.

What is the Gabbai Team? This small, rotating group of lay leaders, led by Worship Committee Chair, Nancy Cohen Israel, will schedule our members to receive the honors of opening the ark, undressing and dressing the Torah, and chanting the Torah blessings at the Saturday morning Lefkowitz Chapel service. The Gabbai Team members will assist the Clergy by organizing these honors in advance of the service, creating greater opportunities for more members of our congregation to participate in the service.

Many thanks to the exploratory team led by Nancy Cohen Israel and comprised of Doug Davidson, Frost Gardner, Bernice Sherling, Jan Timmons, Sarah Yarrin and Richard Wasserman who, for the past year, have looked into the best Gabbai practices of other Reform congregations, discussed how this position could be useful at Temple and came to a conclusion to make this a meaningful position.

The goals of this effort are two-fold: 1) to increase congregational involvement and engagement in worship on Shabbat morning and 2) to expand the already strong culture of welcoming and engagement at the Lefkowitz Chapel service among lay leaders. With these goals in mind, the intention is to make this joyous service even more warm, participatory and spiritually meaningful.

The Gabbai Team will be in place and will begin their sacred work after Simchat Torah. No experience is necessary to have one of the honors in the Torah service but there will be periodic brief orientation session for those who would like instruction about how to carry the Torah, dress and undress the Torah and recite the Torah blessings to feel more comfortable. If you’d like to arrange to have one of the honors at services, please email gabbaiteam@tedallas.org or call Diana Hall at 214.706.0017 and she will put you in touch with the Gabbai Team.

With a new year beginning, now is a good time to reflect on yet another avenue in which we can bring holiness into our lives.

Experience Shabbat Nosh on first Saturdays

Spend time with friends .... Eat.... Relax.... Refresh.... Restore!
What a wonderful way to spend Shabbat! This was the thinking that led to our new Shabbat Nosh. We hope to create time and space after services on Shabbat morning to facilitate an even more enriching Shabbat experience at Temple Emanu-El. We want our members and visitors to feel welcomed and connected to TE. Our membership committee thought about this quite a bit and the concept of our Shabbat Nosh has now become a reality.
Starting in October and in partnership with Sukkot Lunch and Learn, on the first Saturday of each month from October-May, all Temple members are invited to experience Shabbat Nosh. Please join us!
For more information or to help us welcome everyone at Shabbat Nosh, contact Linda Kahalnik, 214.706.0000 ext. 139 or lkahalnik@tedallas.org.

Rosh Hodesh

Rosh Hodesh, the start of each Hebrew month when the new crescent moon appears in the sky, is a time for celebration and reflection, bringing with it hope, light and promise, growth and fulfillment, not only for the moon but for us. Rosh Hodesh Heshvan, the start of the new month, is Wednesday, October 17 so look for the new crescent moon on Tuesday night, October 16!

Heshvan is often called Mar Heshvan, Bitter Cheshvan, because it is the only month in the entire Jewish year that does not have a holiday celebration. This means it is up to us, in our celebrations of Shabbat, personal life cycles, and communal gatherings to learn and do acts of social justice to bring sweetness and celebration into our world, to create opportunities to join together with others to share meals and conversation even without a holiday to bring us together!

What is Storahtelling?

Using an innovative fusion of scholarship, storytelling, performing arts and new media, Storahtelling restores the Torah Service to its original stature through a revival of the lost craft of the Maven, the traditional storyteller who translated the Hebrew Torah into local language. Rooted in biblical text and ritual practice, Storahtelling uses dramatized interpretations, traditional chanting, original music and live interaction to bring Bible off the page and onto the global stage. Storahtelling makes the story matter.

“Full of drama, ancient wisdom and suspense, Storahtelling is a revolutionary approach to Judaism” (Jewish Journal, LA)

Temple Emanu-El is honored and thrilled to host the Mavens of Storahtelling at our Kallah. This program is made possible through The Dolores and Walter Neustadt Scholar in Residence fund.

Creating a happier space in the Pebbles Apartments’ community room

Monica Hirschler knew she was on to something: while brainstorming ways to get involved with Social Justice with Diana Coben Einstein, Diana mentioned that the community room at The Pebbles Apartments was in desperate need of an extreme makeover. Monica realized that with her background and training (she’s an interior designer with years of experience in the Dallas area), this was the perfect tikkun olam fit.

First, she had to assess the challenge at hand: the community room was until recently functioning mainly as a storage space, had peeling white walls and outdated blue linoleum tile floors. However, what Monica saw when she first saw the space was its potential: she says that “as a designer, when you walk into a room, the idea comes into your head and you keep molding it and processing it until it’s exactly right.”

What she saw was a space with bright colors and an inviting feel, something outfitted with books and games, and designed with a view to happy children playing and reading with their parents.

To begin the makeover – which only took 6 weeks once things got rolling – she assessed the design needs, put the budget together, came up with a color scheme, and organized a shopping excursion to load up on the necessary supplies. A big help in sourcing supplies, she says, was Michael Hoffman, who worked with Sherwin Williams to have all of the paint and painting supplies donated. Michael has assisted Temple previously when a similar need for paint and supplies came up, and says that Sherwin Williams “is a great company and clearly has a wonderful heart and commitment to improving the lives of those in need.”

The additional funds came from the Jill Stone Social Action Fund.

With all the materials gathered, it was now time for the “real” work to begin: and luckily, Temple amassed a great team of volunteers, from high school students to young adults to seniors. Monica’s husband, Eric, also threw himself into the mix (according to Monica, he is very good with crown molding), but the best part of the volunteer efforts, Monica said, was that “residents themselves really wanted to help and everyone at Pebbles was so nice and appreciative.”

It took several work nights – one just for cleaning, one for painting the walls and one for re-doing the floors – before Monica was ready to begin the planned piece d’resistance: a mural on the largest wall. For this Monica turned to Susan Stein to assist. Susan is Temple’s own Early Childhood Education Center art teacher, in addition to providing art instruction for elementary students in the Dallas area. Having been involved with a painting project as part of Yad B’Yad, Temple Emanu-El’s day of service, Susan was only too happy to lend her artistic and creative skills to the Pebbles project. As Susan related, “in art, everything is possible”, so she knew that combining forces with Monica’s vision would result in the creation of a bright and beautiful art piece.

Looking for a great volunteer opportunity for your family?

Save the date for Sunday, October 13 at Noon in Linz Hall. In October our monthly collection will be baby items and women’s hygiene items for Jewish Family Service. Children feel safe when they have their own stuffed animal or “lovey” to call their own. Please help us to create “lovey blankets” to give to children whose families are benefitting from the JFS food pantry.

We will provide lunch and all supplies. This project is geared towards children ages 2-10. Bring your friends and have a fun and meaningful afternoon.

For more information please contact Mary Jo Kleiman at mjkleiman@swbell.net. To RSVP, please visit www.participate.tedallas.org and click on volunteer.

This Spring, a group of Temple members created a Community Garden next to the Gan T’filah (outdoor prayer space). During work days over the summer, congregants tended the garden. Denise Siegal commented how pleasant it was to work in the garden and visit with other congregants she doesn’t regularly see. The summer growing season produced 165 pounds of vegetables, fruits and herbs that were donated to the LifeNet Food Pantry. Ken Magbo, Vice President of Housing and Support Services for LifeNet said Temple’s “outreach efforts have been a literal Godsend for our program residents.” The fresh produce is a much appreciated supplement to the regular Food Pantry staples.

In the fall, Temple members will be gardening individual plots in teams with at least 25% of their harvest being donated to the new Vickery Meadow Food Pantry. In addition, there are several farmer’s rows which will be farmed by the Temple community collectively and all of the produce from these rows will be donated to the Vickery Meadow Food Pantry.

Our Community Garden also has a new compost bin that was built by Jeffrey Bradshaw as his Eagle Scout project so we can recycle our garden waste. His mother is a teacher in the Temple Early Childhood Education Center. In another effort to move toward sustainability, the garden team led by Janet Gelphman, Denise Siegal, Elaine Simon and Tricia Lehrman is experimenting with a hugelkultur garden which uses a layering of logs, branches, twigs, leaves and compost so that it requires no irrigation or fertilization.

Later in the year, there will be some educational opportunities to learn gardening tips and how to incorporate ‘garden greeness’ into your own lives. The next program is How to Cook Seasonal Foods – Thursday, November 15 at 7 p.m. in Tobian Auditorium and Kitchen.

Heart House camp counselor grateful to be able to make a difference

Community Garden offers volunteer opportunities

3rd Sundays 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Community Garden Work Days

Help maintain the Community Garden - plant, weed, harvest, spread mulch, turn compost - based on the needs of the month. The produce is donated to Vickery Meadow Food Pantry. Bring garden gloves and hand garden tools. If you are interested in working in the garden or learning more about it, please contact Ruth Klein at ruthbklein@sbcglobal.net.

Compost Team

Create rich compost for our garden! Help maintain the compost in the garden compost bins – maintain the appropriate mixture of materials and turn as needed. If you are interested in being on the compost team, please contact Mark Satinsky at mark@satinsky.com.

By Mollie Toubin

Having had a great camp experience for the past eight years, I know that enthusiastic, loving counselors make all the difference to campers. Luckily I’ve had the benefit of fantastic counselors. So when I decided to volunteer at Heart House’s camp program in Vickery Meadow this past summer, I wanted to make sure the kids had as much fun as I did. I went in hoping they would like me, but what I didn’t realize was how much I would grow to love them.

Every afternoon for six weeks in June and July, Heart House hosted approximately 50 to 75 kids in grades K – 8. Many of these families live in the Wild Flower apartments where Heart House is located. Most of the kids were refugees from Burma and other Southeast Asian countries. Fortunately, they all spoke English, so I was able to communicate easily with them and vice versa.

Camp started out every day with lunch, followed by activities or a field trip, and ended with a snack they could eat or take home. The theme of camp this summer was movies, which all kids love. I helped them create props, revise scripts, and film their creations. I chaperoned two movie field trips, which were made possible due to the generosity of a donation by Temple Emanu-El. The kids were treated to hot dogs, popcorn, and drinks. I got a glimpse of my future as a mom when the girls repeatedly asked “Miss Mollie” to accompany them on numerous trips to the restroom. I didn’t mind, though, because they were all so sweet, polite, and fun to be with.

I was amazed by how dedicated and creative the Heart House staff members were. I hope to continue learning from them as I build on my summer experience by volunteering in the tutoring program during the school year. I was touched by how appreciative even the youngest kids were for opportunities that many of us take for granted. The biggest surprise of all was how grateful I felt for the chance to make a difference in these wonderful kids’ summer and lives.
Rabbi David Stern, Ruth Messinger to lead AJWS study mission to Nicaragua in June 2013

Join Rabbi Stern and American Jewish World Service President Ruth Messinger as they lead a national AJWS Study Mission to Nicaragua from June 16-21, 2013. As we explore the countryside, we will meet AJWS grantees working to empower local communities and build a future of peace and equality.

Plan to attend an informational meeting at the home of Mark and Peggy Zilbermann on Tuesday, October 23 at 7:30 p.m. For more information, please call Susan Salom in Rabbi Stern’s office at 214.706.0015.

Temple Emanu-El Couples Club welcomes Dallas entertainer

Temple Emanu-El Couples Club kicked off their Fall fun schedule recently with the Sally Grant Show.

Sally Grant Reid, a popular Dallas performer, presented her Golden Age of Musicals show to a large gathering of Couples Club members. Reid has appeared on stage, television and radio in Europe and Mexico as well as her shows since 1983.

The show was preceded by a wine social and dinner. The Temple Emanu-El Couples Club, founded 23 years ago, is a social club, open to all members of the Temple. One of the couple must be 55 years of age or older. Prospective members from the Jewish community are also invited to join. If interested, call France Sue Schneider at 972.398.1771 or Sarah Yarrin or Jack Repp at 214.361.0486.

New Treasures From the Archives exhibit continues in October

TREASURES FROM THE ARCHIVES, a new exhibit in the Jacobus Archives, continues in October. The famous silver Linz Award given to civic leader, Alex Weisberg, is on display, as well as the “Proclamation of Israel Independence” signed by Golda Meir.

Rabbi Gerald Klein’s “Remembering a Luncheon and a Sabbath Service” will take us back to John Kennedy’s trip to Dallas. The old Columbian Club will have its day.

The beginnings of the Hebrew Benevolent Association, the first Jewish organization in Dallas, and the forerunner of Temple Emanu-El will also be celebrated.

Interested in experiencing Israel this December with Rabbi Adam Allenberg and Cantor Richard Cohn?

This journey to Israel will take us to places not typical for first-time visitors, making this a great travel opportunity for first-time and return participants. While traveling south, we will stay on multiple kibbutzim, exploring the outstanding environmental projects being carried out in the Arava Desert; we will see what is being done in Reform congregations throughout Israel; we will take a jeep tour in the Ramon Crater, participate in a real archaeological dig, and see some of the regular trip highlights like Yad VaShem, Masada, and sites in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, while our talented clergy team of Cantor Cohn and Rabbi Allenberg infuses music and spirit into this incredible experience!

To see for yourself what an Israel experience with our congregation can be, check out our recent Israel Journey blog by clicking here.

If you have questions or want more information, please contact Karen Hoffman, Program Director, at 214.706.0000 or khoffman@tedallas.org.
The 2012-2013 book group is gearing up for a great year of reading and discussions. You can join in at any time, and we welcome newcomers. The book group meets every other month at 7:30 p.m. in the Alexander Conference Room. Contact Nancy Rivin at nrivin@tedallas.org or 214-706-0000 for more information.

Learn and hear more about the vision of Our Temple | Our Future

Our Temple | Our Future is moving forward and we want to tell you all about it!

Two open houses are scheduled so that you can choose the time that fits you best: Thursday, Nov. 1 at 7 in Linz Hall or Sunday, Nov. 18 at 10 a.m. in Lefkowitz Chapel.

At both, Rabbi David Stern and Temple President Robin Kosberg will share their vision for this transformative project for our iconic, but aging building and explain what the improvements and new construction will mean for Temple and for your family.

Campaign chairs Mark Zilbermann and Sheryl Fields Bogen will present an update on fundraising for the $32 million campaign, and Barry Greenberg and Randy Ratner, co-chairs of the Design and Construction Committee, will walk through their work to date with architect Gary Cunningham and share what lies ahead.

You’ll have a chance to see drawings and models for an open and flexible chapel, new welcoming and gathering spaces and revamped classrooms to accommodate 21st century learning. In addition, our sacred and beautiful Olan Sanctuary and Lefkowitz Chapel will be brought up to date with better lighting and acoustics and other refinements, and new administrative space will better address congregant needs.

From renovation of historic spaces to creation of new ones, Our Temple | Our Future is rooted in the need to ensure that Temple Emanu-El is and remains a place where our families and future generations can always connect to each other, to God and to a shared sense of sacred purpose.

As Our Temple | Our Future gains momentum, we welcome your participation in this exciting project. We hope you will join us to learn more about it.

New plans kick off for members 70+ with g2g events

Our new Caring Congregation effort g2g, (Generation to Generation), kicks-off this month with specifically planned tours and activities for members aged 70 and above.

A similar schedule to the one at right describing exciting g2g opportunities and events, will be sent out three times a year.

Additional activities “in the works” for 2013 includes attending a special class with your g2g friends at the Dallas Jewish Learning Fest in February, sharing a nosh together before the popular Temple Jazz Shabbat in March, a possible tour of the new Bush Presidential Library in April and a day trip including lunch to Fort Worth to listen to the Van Cliburn Piano Competition Semi-finals in May.

In addition, we are continuing to explore transportation possibilities to and from Temple events, both during the day and at night.

All events are coordinated by a g2g committee member and have volunteer hosts or friends, as well.

Join us!

Co-Chairs of Committee: Beverly Blumenthal, Robin Sachs

Committee: Helen Frank, Alan Harris, Sally Unger, Sheryl Walsh, Linda Winski, Sarah Yarrin

Host friends: Syl Benenson, Sharan and Lynn Goldstein, Milton and Joanie Loeb, Pat Peiser

Caregiver support group can help caregivers cope with range of emotions

It’s normal for caregivers to experience a range of feelings that include frustration, sadness, and anger, as well as the good feelings that come from helping someone you love. Although it’s not always easy to remember, as a caregiver your first responsibility is to care for yourself. It’s both unwise and unhealthy to keep filling someone else’s cup while leaving your cup empty. Along with Jewish Family Service, Temple has created a support group for you, loved ones taking care of loved ones as spouses or as children of those with long term illness. A JFS licensed and experienced social worker will serve as facilitator. Even if this group is not of interest to you, we wanted you to be aware of this important initiative. The group meets this month on Tuesday, Oct. 16 from Noon – 1:30 p.m. in Levine Conference Room. If you know of someone for whom this might be appropriate, feel free to forward the information or contact Peggy Papert directly at ppapert@tedallas.org.
Caring Congregation: What is it we do, exactly?

By Silvia Davis and Debbie Williams

In his poem, The Rainy Day, Henry Longfellow wrote, “Into each life some rain must fall”. Sometimes the rain is a soothing, calming shower. Other times the rain comes in the form of a violent upsetting storm or a gloomy mist. Not to completely overwork the metaphor, rain is an imperative for life and part of the cycle of the natural world.

In many ways, we volunteers of Caring Congregation are the fair and foul weather men and women who respond to our congregants’ place in that cycle of nature. When we are blessed with the birth of a child, our volunteers respond with a gift of booties. When we are saddened by the loss of a loved one, our volunteers respond with calls and cards. We make hospital visits and deliver mitzvah meals to the sick and recovering with the hope that our community will help to heal and inspire faith and hope. We encourage all generations to come together in community with our g2g (Generation to Generation) programming throughout the year.

There are times when our fellow congregants simply need someone to talk to who will listen. Caring Congregation is there for those who have relationships with our military personnel through our Honoring Our Own project and its off-shoot, Military Support Group suppers, as well as our combined efforts with Jewish Family Service’s Caregivers Support Group.

We are also part of the quiet, invisible support of our most treasured and enduring sacred moments as Jews. Challah Angels bake Challah for Shabbat services and our onegs, mitzvah meals, hospital visit gift bags and now for ShabbatTogether. Volunteers create community during Passover by matching hosts and guests with our Elijah + 2 efforts. Birthday and Holiday cards are sent. Havdallah for Seniors allows our fellow congregants to continue to observe and participate while they live in assisted living facilities.

We are your life-long committee, your Caring Congregation and we are here to serve you.

To join our community in caring please contact Silvia Davis at kellerdavis@hotmail.com or Debbie Williams at deb@retreatcentral.com.

Reflection of How We Can Honor Our Own

By Bruce Kaye

While visiting Los Angeles, I had the opportunity to see the LA National Cemetery. Looking at row after row of burial markers at first made me feel overwhelmed. After some time passed, I felt gratitude to those veterans who risked everything on my behalf. How could I ever repay such acts of bravery?

I must admit I felt similar emotions (perhaps to a lesser degree) when I agreed to take over the helm of the Honoring Our Own initiative for Temple Emanu El’s Caring Congregation. The purpose of the program is to (1) Connect the Temple community to our Military, (2) Educate our youth about military service and (3) provide support to Temple families who have served or have children currently in service.

The needs of Temple members returning from Iraq and/or Afghanistan have changed from only a year ago and our programming will change to adapt to the reality that care packages are no longer as vital as once thought. Rather, the reality is that returning veterans need bedding (e.g. sheets, pillow cases, etc.) and we will work to meet this concern. Under Rabbi Ross, we shall once again have a military day as part of Sunday school. A “Battle of the Bands” is planned for the older kids to recognize our brave men and woman who are in battle daily. Finally, under the direction and guidance of Dr. Arnie Marks, a newsletter is planned to offer information about social services, feature stories about Temple members who are actively serving and try to provide a connection between the military families, those in service and the community.

After leaving the Los Angeles National Cemetery, I felt a peaceful calm that gave me motivation to take on this task. I am committed to the fact that this is not a fleeting moment! To join in the efforts to assist our military members and families, please contact me at brucekaye1@mac.com.

JFS and Temple, partners for next grief support series

Jewish Family Service strives to preserve and strengthen the quality of life for individuals and families in our community and Temple is very proud to partner with such an impactful agency by bringing grief support to our building. The six sessions start Tuesday October 16, continuing through November 20. Topics covered include the grief process, Jewish traditions and insights, support, communication and hope for the future. JFS counselor Deborah Leibensberger, ACSW, LCSW will facilitate and Rabbi Robbins will assist with the Jewish component at the Oct. 30 session. Enrollment will be limited, so please register by contacting JFS at 972.437.9950 or call Peggy Papert if you have further questions. There is also an ongoing grief support group held at JFS on the third Tuesday of each month at 1 p.m.

Community Coffee: Privacy and Identity Theft

Everyone is concerned about privacy and identity theft. Credit and debit cards, tax refunds, on-line activities, social media, checking accounts -- all create ID and privacy risks. People want to know what to do.

Brotherhood is pleased to present a Community Coffee program starting at 10 a.m. on Sunday, October 28 to help us understand these problems and what we should be doing about them. Experts from the IRS, law enforcement and financial services will explain what the risks are, discuss the potential consequences, and tell us what we can do to protect ourselves. The participants are:

- Christopher J. Lee, Senior Attorney, IRS National Taxpayer Advocate
- Detective Mike Dana, Dallas Police Department Swindle/Financial Crimes Unit
- Janet S. Stalvey, Vice President and Regional Investigations Manager, JPMorgan Chase & Company

More information about this program will be provided in emails, posters and other Temple communications.

Fall Coat Drive

Sunday, October 21, 9 a.m. - 1 p.m., West Parking lot

Too many children in Dallas will need warm clothing this winter. You can make the difference by donating coats, sweaters, scarves, and gloves for children and adults. Temple Emanu-el Brotherhood will again collect these items in our “Coats For Kids” program on Sunday, October 21 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. in the parking lot by the Hillcrest entry. This year we are working on partnering with another synagogue. We thank the Boy Scouts who are assisting Brotherhood, Loan Star Cleaners & Laundry for generously donating cleaning and pickup services and the Dallas Police Store Front in East Dallas who will distribute clothes.

Fall Flower Sale

Sunday, October 21, 9 a.m. - 1 p.m. in the North parking lot.

Brotherhood’s Fall Flower Festival offers glorious fall colors to brighten up everyone’s spirits after the long difficult summer. An order form will be going out to the congregation prior to the sale so that you can preorder. There will be only a limited number of extra flowers available on the day of the sale. If you have any questions, please contact Jeff Light at 214.766.2431 or at jlight@tebrotherhood.org.

Fall Blood & Bone Marrow Drive

Sunday, October 21, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. in Linz Hall

This is the 27th anniversary year of the Brotherhood’s semi-annual blood and bone marrow drive. Please telephone Harry Kabler at 214.363.3438 so he can reserve a time slot convenient for you. You’ll find a sign-up sheet at the Reception Desk (main entrance). As in past years, Brotherhood will be working with Carter BloodCare to make this worthy event possible. Your appointment will take from 45 minutes to one hour.

Are You a Mensch?

The following are questions for you to answer:

1. Do you care about doing good things for others? Yes/No
2. Do you do good things for others? Yes/No
3. Do you do good things for others when you are acknowledged? Yes/No
4. Do you do good things for others when you are “Anonymous”? Yes/No

If you answered Yes to one or more, you are a Mensch. A Mensch belongs in the Temple Brotherhood.

Being a Mensch in Brotherhood enhances the quality of Temple Life with financial support and manpower. A Mensch enjoys the camaraderie of other men at Brotherhood events. Most importantly, a Mensch has the strength to give of himself when he is needed.

Temple Brotherhood Needs You! We want 500 men ready to get the job done. Are you ready to give back? Are you involved enough? Do you care enough? Even a Mensch needs an extra hand sometime. We’d like yours, and we’d like to offer you ours when you need it. Be a Mensch and find out what we do.

Please come to our dinner and meeting in Linz Hall on the first Wednesday of the month. Please send an e-mail for a dinner reservation to president@tebrotherhood.org. We hope to see you there. Be a Mensch!
