Crossing Bridges—and Generations

As we drive into Manhattan in late July to have lunch with my grandmother Lili Rudin in honor of her 101st birthday, one of her great-grandchildren asks from the back of the minivan: “Why are there so many bridges around here?” The geographic answer: “Because Manhattan is an island, so it’s the only way to get here.” (We leave the detail of tunnels aside.)

We gather for lunch at Granny Lili’s senior residence on the Upper West Side. This is actually a make-up date for those of us who were unable to make it to her official birthday party. But while “Granny’s Birthday—the Sequel” features only nine of us instead of the 20 who went out for Chinese food the week before, it’s still a festive gathering. And true to the Rudin/Stern family tradition, we know it’s festive because other parties in the dining room ask us to keep it down.

Granny Lili, who is actually my step-grandmother, having married my grandfather six months after I was born, is in her element. Born in London, she has also lived in New York, Mallorca and Tel Aviv, and traveled just about everywhere else. Still one of the most stylish, beautiful women I know, she asks after each person at the table by name and updates us on other family members, and all with a twinkle in her eye.

After lunch, upstairs in her apartment, she has some quiet time with my daughter Lili, who shares her birthday and her name. The 101 year-old Lili tells the 14-year-old Lili some choice stories, and there in a senior residence on the Upper West Side, amidst family photos and great-grandchildren bouncing around the apartment, another bridge is built in Manhattan—spanning from one generation and one century to the next, founded on resilience and wisdom and laughter and love.

From Granny Lili’s, we take the subway to the Lower East Side and Tenement Museum. We learn about the thousands of immigrants who flooded the neighborhood in the second half of the 19th century, about how Little Germany became the Jewish Lower East Side at the turn of the 20th.

We leave the apartment that once belonged to the Rogarshevsky family at 97 Orchard Street, and see the signs in Chinese on the building next door. Yiddish has morphed into Spanish on these streets, where the primary immigrant populations now hail from Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic. They are the latest in another bridge—of generations and language and common hardship and shared hope—from Germany, Ireland, Holland and Asia; from the Caribbean, the Philippines and Bangladesh.

We take note: Immigration, whether through Ellis Island, Galveston or places in between, is not just a matter of American history and contemporary politics, but of Jewish autobiography. Passports and visas and Yiddish ads for English classes—those are our Torah too, and their lessons still call to us today. In 1938, Mayor LaGuardia’s administration banned pushcarts from this neighborhood because they were creating hazards by clogging the streets. But the shouts of those vendors still echo down the alleyways—bridges from an instructive past to contemporary debates that test the ethical mettle of this nation of immigrants.

It was a July day of bridges, and I share it in this month of Tishrei because what are the High Holy Days but our Jewish season of bridge-building? From one year to the next, from past to future, from the lessons of earlier generations to the sometimes rough seas of our own lives. Bridges of relationship rebuilt; bridges of forgiveness which span hurt and disappointment; sacred bridges reaching from ancient texts to contemporary challenges in our families, in our nation, in God’s world.

In Granny Lili’s apartment, the stories ring with laughter. On the Lower East Side, the vendors’ voices echo through the generations in Yiddish, in Italian, in Irish brogues and Spanish accents. And somewhere in the mix, if you listen closely, you might just hear Tekiah. That is the sound of Jewish bridges under construction. May we be builders of hope at this season of the holy, and may our stories and our bridges be for blessing.
From Rosh Hashanah through Yom Kippur...

Rosh Hashanah’s celebration of the creation of the world reminds us that we, too, are created anew each year and each day. On Yom Kippur, that fresh start invites us to use words, music and silence to reflect and renew our efforts to bring healing into our own lives, our community and our world.

Page 5

At Tashlich… “Our family likes reflecting on the past year and sharing our hopes for the New Year ahead surrounded by nature and our Temple community.”

Jane Larkin

All generations join together for the Tashlich ritual of casting bread into the water and washing away our sins.

Page 7

With the High Holy Days food drive… “My kids were amazed first by the huge quantity of food donated and second by the realization that there are families who needed this food...This was a great chance to do a mitzvah and have fun together as a family.”

Alyssa Fiedelman

Please help us collect 10,000 pounds of food on Yom Kippur to feed the hungry of our city.

Page 7

On Yom Kippur afternoon… “We will launch Sh’mah Emanu-El, a congregation-wide effort that will create conversations, develop relationships, deepen connections and engage Temple members around rest, rejuvenation and making time for what matters most in your life.”

Scott McCartney, Temple Emanu-El President

Engage in the conversation from 12:30-2:30PM
For Simchat Torah... “Watching our daughter, Levyn, consecrated during the Simchat Torah celebration last year enabled us to experience a family dor l’dor moment. Levyn’s embrace of a Jewish ethos is a direct result of our tradition being passed down through Torah.”

Heath Einstein

Live music and Israeli-style dancing will fill this festive, up-close celebration of the Torah! The party is for everyone—be here for all the fun.

Page 8

At Kever Avot... A very special part of the High Holy Days season is the observance of Kever Avot, visiting the graves of our ancestors. At Temple, our custom is to honor loved ones’ memories with a reflective service in the beautiful mausoleum at Temple Emanu-El Cemetery. Gather with us in this sacred space to reflect on the power of love and memory.

During Sukkot... “I really try to help my family put everything in perspective, focus on being grateful, content and at peace with what IS, so that we can be happy with all the many blessings in our lives and all the many blessings to come.”

Candace Stone

We celebrate the bounty of our lives with an abundance of opportunities to be in our sukkah and give thanks for the beauty of the world.

Friendly reminders for your safety, convenience and comfort during the High Holy Days

Some of the service times you received may not be what you requested. All High Holy Days Seating Request Forms were date-stamped upon receipt, and requests accommodated in order of receipt.

Review service times on your admission cards, as you will be admitted for services at those times ONLY. The Olan Sanctuary evening services are identical.

High Holy Days services are for Temple members only. However, we do provide special services for guests. Admission cards for our Guest Services will be available beginning Thursday, August 29.

Police officers, admission card takers, and Temple volunteers are on hand for your safety and convenience. Please follow their instructions. Be prepared to show your admission cards to enter the Temple grounds and to board a shuttle bus. Taxi cabs and limousines may be inspected at Temple entrances. Please allow extra time for this search.

For security purposes, Temple will be closed until 4:00pm on Wednesday, September 4, to prepare for Rosh Hashanah and on Friday, September 13, to prepare for Yom Kippur.

When you arrive at Temple, please present your admission card to the greeter at the door. Your cooperation is appreciated.

Sanctuary services are open to members and their children ages 7 years and older except the Yom Kippur Yizkor Memorial Service, for which children must be at least 10.

Temple Emanu-El will have an emergency medical technician—an off-duty Dallas firefighter—at Temple throughout High Holy Days. The EMT will be located in the Bridal Room, which is close to both the Olan Sanctuary and Pollman Hall and is convenient to Lefkowitz Chapel and other Temple areas. This trained medical technician will assist Temple staff and the off-duty Dallas police officers with emergency decisions or treatment of our members and guests.

Remember to bring your personal copy of the Gates of Repentance prayer book. Temple has a limited number for distribution at services.

If you will be out of town during the High Holy Days, or if you have children away in college, contact the Temple Emanu-El business office to obtain a URJ Courtesy Request Form to receive admission to services at a URJ congregation in another city.

We encourage you to use off-site parking at NorthPark Center. Air-conditioned shuttle bus transportation between NorthPark and Temple is available. You must have your admission card with you to board the bus. Please see the “Off-Site Parking” insert for more information.

It is against the law to park in fire lanes. To preserve the beauty of the Temple grounds, please do not park in the south pecan grove.

To help preserve the spirit and sanctity of the High Holy Days season, please turn off cell phones and place beepers in “silent” mode during services.

Diaper-changing facilities are available in specially marked restrooms located near the child care rooms.

Please cooperate with ushers who are instructed to fill all vacant seats, except for those seats saved for drivers who are parking cars. In general seating, a reasonable number of seats may be saved for your immediate family until 15 minutes prior to the start of services.

Questions or concerns? Please feel free to contact us at 214.706.0000, or email Executive Director Rick Rosenberg at rrosenberg@tedallas.org

Say happy birthday to Israel with an aliyah
The Hebrew word aliyah means “to go up” and we use it in Jewish life to describe both ascending the hills that lead to Jerusalem and approaching the bima to recite the blessings at the Torah. In this year marking Israel’s 65th birthday, our congregation joins the two ideas into a single action with an open invitation to join the celebration. If you have traveled to Israel in the past 65 years, you are invited for a group aliyah to chant the Torah blessings on Rosh Hashanah day at the 9:00AM service in Olan Sanctuary. Together we will gather on the bima or around scrolls placed at the front of Tobian Auditorium as we reflect on our memories and connections to the land and language, and the stories and memories of the Jewish people.

If you’d like to practice the blessings, follow the link below to an audio file and the words in Hebrew and transliteration.

Join us for Tashlich
September 5, 4:30PM
The Jewish tradition of tashlich—the word means “you shall cast”—comes from the writings of the prophet Micah: “And You will cast our sins into the depths of the sea” (7:19). This wonderful, engaging ritual held on Rosh Hashanah afternoon, involves gathering at a body of water to recite the Tashlich prayer and symbolically cast our sins into the water.

Our Temple tradition is to cast the bread into the pond at Caruth Park, on Hillcrest Road between Caruth and Southwestern. We’ll also symbolically wash away our sins on dissolvable paper. Rabbi Asher Knight and Cantor Leslie Niren will lead us in a service of music and inspiration that will set a positive tone for the new year.

This is a terrific way to meet new people, connect with friends and family and enjoy some apples and honey at the conclusion of the service.

To learn more about Tashlich and this year’s service, please contact Diana Cohen Einstein at 214.706.0000, ext. 126, or deinstein@tedallas.org

Interfaith Families gather after Tashlich
Immediately following the Tashlich service, Interfaith Families will celebrate the new year by picnicking together, featuring a sing-along with Cantor Leslie Niren.

Our Temple | Our Future—Our Environment

By Rabbi Debra Robbins

In the details for building the ancient Tabernacle, the biblical blueprints indicate that the ark holding the Torah should be covered on the inside and the outside with pure gold.

The rabbis of the Talmud suggest this is a metaphor for a righteous person whose inside is like the outside—whose actions and values are made of the same material. The metaphor works the other way as well: If we want to nurture a community where values are not only felt but also acted upon, then the building in which we gather should be a source of inspiration—manifesting our sacred beliefs both on the inside and the outside.

Protecting and celebrating the natural world is central to the design plans for Our Temple | Our Future, our project to rejuvenate and add to our historic building. The very first responsibility human beings were given in the Torah was to take care of the earth that God had made. That biblical challenge continues today as we strive to make choices and take actions that show awareness and gratitude, responsible use and protection of the natural world, to make manifest the mitzvah of Bal Tashchit: “You shall not destroy.”

The teams working on this project have gone to great lengths to ensure that the plans for the inside match the outside. For instance, regular glass windows will be replaced with thicker, energy efficient panes and insulation will be added to lower our energy consumption. Teak paneling and other materials will be repurposed. New materials will include recycled content when possible.

Wood used will be certified by the Forest Stewardship Council. Our landscaping will require less water. The new campus will include walkways and benches in the Pecan Grove, a garden to attract butterflies and wildflower meadow, inviting us to spend time outside and not just inside. And when we are inside, natural light will fill the rooms through new windows in Lefkowitz Chapel, Tobian Auditorium and along many hallways.

Our new campus gives us the opportunity to literally be a place where the inside is the same as the outside, where we will move seamlessly from being indoors to being outdoors, where we can experience the beauty of God’s natural world inside and outside and seek to do the same with our own lives.

May Their Memories be for Blessing

In Jewish tradition, it is a mitzvah to visit the graves of our ancestors. A meaningful way to fulfill this mitzvah is to visit the graves of our loved ones during the days leading up to the High Holy Days, a tradition called Kever Avot. According to Jewish law, gravesites are not visited during Shabbat or during the High Holy Days, which is why Kever Avot takes place in the days preceding Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

Our community custom of Kever Avot is to hold a meaningful service of remembrance led by our clergy whether you have loved ones buried at the historic Temple Emanu-El Cemetery or elsewhere. It is a time when we may confront our own mortality and it may help us to face the future with serious intent and purposefulness. The cemetery is a place for contemplation and reflection. It is a holy place, sanctified by tears, prayers and the physical remains of our loved ones.

Although laws exist in our tradition that determine when we should visit the graves, there is no law that details how one should experience the occasion. Often visitors are absolutely silent, absorbed in their private memories. Others “talk” to the deceased, sharing concerns, hopes and prayers. Psalms and readings are often recited.

In addition to prayer, many people follow the ancient custom of placing a stone on the marker. As opposed to flowers which fade and wither, the stone is solid and permanent and serves as a sign of hope that the memories of our loved ones never fade. Finally, some have the custom of plucking grass on leaving the burial grounds. This act symbolizes the frailty of life and reminds us that though “we are as dust” (Ps. 103:14), nevertheless, we hope for the time of resurrection when the righteous “shall blossom out of the city like grass of the earth.” (Ps. 72:16).

We hope you and your family will join us in carrying out the tradition of Kever Avot as a way to continue to cope with your loss and to honor the memory of our loved ones.

Brotherhood has a distinguished tradition of successful blood drives. The 35 pints of blood collected at the April 7 blood drive were used to help victims of the explosion in the city of West, Texas. Congratulations to Chair Hal Sommer, who was assisted by Alan Harris, Robert Hirsh and Harold Krom. Also huge in this effort were the phonecalls by the team of Ron Cohen, Joe Goldman and Ken Schiller.
We’d love to hear from you. Please contact Hal at halsonmer@aol.com with your preferred appointment time, and a member of Brotherhood will respond with a confirmation.
You can also donate blood at any of the Carter Blood Care storefronts in Temple’s name by using Sponsor #021387. For more information, contact Carter at 800.366.2834 or www.carterbloodcare.org

Get Involved
Attend Brotherhood meetings, generally the first Wednesday of the month at 6:15PM for dinner, 7PM for the meeting, at tebrotherhood.org. New members joining in September will have the benefit of membership for the rest of 2013 and a full year’s membership beginning January 2014.
